The Old Men Drank Jake.
Muscle Shoals Veto.
The Power of Russia.
How Was Thought Created?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HODGE, Cal., March 4.

JUST WEST of here, at the edge of the beautiful Pacific Ocean, Uncle Sam has a reservation where old soldiers, dating back to the Civil War, spend their last days, sitting on benches in the warm sunshine, watching automobiles rushing by with loads of beautiful movie queens, on their way to Santa Monica beach.

As every good prohibitionist knows, that ought to satisfy the aged warriors, but it does not satisfy all. Before prohibition, some would occasionally spend five of their pennies for a glass of beer, no matter what that might mean to their future happiness. Under prohibition, some have accepted substitutes that bootlegging supplies.

TWENTY-FOUR of the old soldiers are today lying in agony in the Sawtelle Hospital, their muscles rigid, all of them close to death. They drank a deadly brand of alcoholic ginger called "jake" and will pay with their lives for their failure to respect the Eighteenth Amendment. Perhaps getting the "jake" at drug stores made it seem less wicked to them.

Concerning alcohol, the law makes an exception in favor of Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and other clergymen, those that possess the power to change the alcohol into the precious blood, and those that do not claim such power. Would it be a good idea to except also any soldiers past seventy that shed their blood for their country, since that is also precious blood.

PRESIDENT HOOVER has vetoed the Muscle Shoals bill and congressmen, many of them glad to see their votes for the bill vetoed, made no effort to put the bill through. The public investment of $150,000,000 will continue to remain idle and wasted.

Farmers could get cheap fertilizers from that plant. But that would not suit the fertilizer companies. Manufacturers and householders could get cheap electricity from that public investment, but that would not suit the power companies.

AND EVEN the weanling child should know that those companies and a few others are our actual government. That is not a complaint, only a statement of fact. It is probably desirable, on the whole, that intelligent feudal industry should govern, until the people develop signs of intelligent thinking, plus will power.

A POWERFUL French radical complains that France spends too much, keeping ready for war. Briand, a real statesman, replies for the French government that the Russian army is today the most formidable destructive power in the world, and he does not intend to have France taken by surprise.

Our government could learn from Briand, if it could learn from anyone. But it cannot, it is too busy with the beer question. Why worry about Russia, or the next war, when you know that even now someone in America may be drinking a glass of beer.

FRANCE, AS all the world knows, is the best prepared among the nations. A British statesman says:

"We are polite to the French, because we know that their overwhelmingly powerful air fleet could destroy every city in Britain, on the day that war might be declared."

With all this preparation, France is marvellously prosperous. Her store of gold is next to ours. Per capita, size and population compared, it is much greater than ours, and France, until within a few weeks, has been absolutely free of unemployment.

It pays to be prepared. And some day, our financiers, underrating Russia, and directing their government to snub and ignore Russia's government, may wish they had been wiser.

PROF. EINSTEIN will be interested in his talk with Dr. Crile, about the latter's experiments in "artificial production of life, by means of physics and chemistry." Like other scientists, Prof. Einstein finds it necessary to explain in some material way the origin of life in the universe.

He and they are not satisfied with the account of a Supreme Being, saying "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness," as told in the first chapter of Genesis, then making a full grown man out of dust or clay.

SCIENCE MAY name the elements essential to life, and apparently produce life from suitable protoplasm and chemicals. But life of itself is no more than steam, or capillary attraction. THOUGHT is the only thing of real importance, and a million Criles and Einsteins, plus all the chemists that ever lived, will not create thought, which is the work of the spirit.

GANDHI IS said to have agreed on a settlement with England, one that will save his face, and not worry England much. Having led his followers to the seashore to make salt, in defiance of Britain's salt monopoly, Ganhi had to get some concession.

English statesmen solemnly say:

"Those that dwell at the edge of the sea, may make their own salt, since God has placed them so near it. We shall make the salt for all others."

Soon, even those near the sea

'WARRING' CONGRESS ADJOURNS

Factions Fail to Establish Peace Before Houses Bring Session to End

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 4. The Seventy-first Congress, in many respects the most remarkable of the post-war Congresses, died its constitutional death at noon today after two hectic years of turmoil and turbulence — and prodigious legislating.

GAVELS END SESSION

The falling gavels of Vice President Curtis and Speaker Longworth terminated the session and the Congress by constitutional provision at the stroke of noon. The House was in good humor, with members debating the merits and defects of the Hoover administration in striking contrast to the Senate, which was strangled by Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem.), of Oklahoma, who filibustered all pending legislation to death. He was angered by Senate refusal to consider restrictions on oil imports.

President Hoover spent the last hour of the session in the President's room of the Capitol, signing bills and conferring with party leaders. He was accompanied by members of his cabinet. He held a little impromptu reception in the anteroom, scores of senators and representatives greeting him beside a host of politicians and Capitol attaches.

HOSPITALIZATION BILL

The President signed a number of bills while at the Capitol, starting with the second deficiency act, carrying $85,000,000 for a host of governmental activities. He was armed with an opinion of the Attorney General, however, that held he had 10 days in which to act on all measures he failed to sign before Congress stopped. In all he had between 300 and 400 bills awaiting his approval or veto.

One important piece of legisla-

JUDGE OPENED COUNCIL INVESTIGATION IN '10; CONTROLLER ACTS

Interest in the alleged irregularities in the city food purchasing department continued today with the following developments:

1—Leaders of the bar declared the presiding judge in Criminal Court has authority to instigate a grand jury probe.

2—It was revealed that a fake stamp was used in an attempt to pass off uninspected meat on the city.

3—Leaders of the League of Women Voters considered possibility of instigating a grand jury probe.

Fake Inspection Seal Used

A faked or duplicate city inspection stamp was used for a time in an attempt to pass off uninspected meats on the city, according to Dr. James P. Kerr, city controller.

Meat buying has been one of the outstanding cases in which "trick specifications" have been charged in the investigation of the Department of Supplies and purchasing methods of former Director Bertram L. Succop.

FAKE DETECTED

Dr. Kerr reveals that one concern whose specifications called for furnishing steers to Mayview delivered cow meat and stamped it as approved by city inspectors. The fake was detected and the meat refused.

In one instance, Dr. Kerr refused to pay a Chicago meat packing concern for a carload of cow meat, sold to the city as steer, until the company rebated five cents a pound on the consignment. He continued:

"Cow meat sent to Mayview by a Pittsburgh firm was de-

Law Violations Indicated

Judge George V. Moore, now presiding in Criminal Court, according to high legal opinion, has full authority to order a probe of the alleged irregularities in affairs of the City Department of Supplies. Both City Council and the district attorney's office could have done so.

Judge Moore can order the grand jury to make a presentment, and as an illustration of his authority to do so members of the bar point to the presentation made to the court in 1910, when indictments were returned against about 100 councilmen and others for accepting bribes.

KERR ORDERS AUDIT

This much was learned today, as Controller J. P. Kerr announced that he had ordered an independent audit, by auditors not otherwise employed by the city, of the records of Bertram L. Succop, discharged as director of the Department of Supplies. The audit, to begin at 9 a. m., tomorrow, will cover Succop's six-year term, Kerr promised.

At that time Judges Josiah Cohen and Thomas D. Carnahan, now dead, and Judge Joseph M. Swearingen were sitting in Criminal Court. Judge Cohen asked that the presentment be made.

Harrison Nesbit, now president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., was the foreman of the investigating body.

The late William A. Blakeley was the district attorney at that time. Lawyers recall that there

Oatmeal, soup and spaghetti for humans—choice celery, iceberg lettuce, carrots, oranges, figs, bananas and apples for the animals.

This, by way of comparison, is an every-day bill-of-fare at the city hospital at Mayview, against the one at the city zoo in Highland Park.

That the city purchasing department insisted on buying the highest priced food for the animals at the zoo just as in the Mayview purchases was revealed yesterday.

Zoo inmates will thrive only on fresh vegetables, but the purchasing department evidently believed the animals also demanded the finest apples graded as to size and color, the most symmetrical stalks of celery and the best lettuce the market offered. That was the quality of the produce for which the city paid.

Yesterday at the zoo, Alice, a 13-year-old African chimpanzee, rested comfortably after a repast of the best. For breakfast she consumed a loaf of brown bread and an orange. For lunch she had boiled potatoes and carrots, and

PRIEST WITNESS IN MOORE WILL

The late Ambassador Alexander P. Moore once told his wife, Lillian Russell Moore, that her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Russell O'Reilly Calvit, would have many good times spending their money, Father James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church, so testified today in Orphans' Court when the hearing was resumed in the suit of Mrs. Calvit who is contesting Moore's will.

Moore, who was executor of his wife's estate, did not include in his accounting of her funds much valuable jewelry, paintings and art objects listed by the American Art Galleries, of New York, for sale, and which were not sold but returned to him, Attorney Pollock testified. He said among the articles unaccounted for were a diamond worth $12,000 to $15,000 and a pearl necklace which Moore ordered returned.

Father Cox said:

"I was a chaplain in Mercy Hospital in 1919. One day the ambassador and his wife came to see her daughter, Dorothy, who was confined in the hospital. As they walked along the corridor I heard Mr. Moore say:

"'Cheer up, Lillian. Dorothy is a pretty healthy girl, you

Girl's Suicide Spurs Hunt For Stranglers of Her 'Butterfly' Mother

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

NEW YORK, March 4.—(INS.)—A tragic aftermath of the strangling of Vivian Gordon—the pathetic suicide of the slain woman's 16-year-old daughter, Benita—spurred the police today in their efforts to solve the mysterious murder of the former stage beauty.

Even the most hardened "cop" experienced a heart twinge over the latest dramatic development in "the Gordon case." The dead woman's child, unable longer to stand the revelations of her mother's pitiful past, decided to "end it all."

And so she killed herself with gas in the home of her father in Audubon, N. J., where she had grown up in ignorance of the life her mother led along Broadway's "Gay White Way."

CHILD GIVES UP

In a little red diary which had been given to her for Christmas by her stepmother, Benita made this final entry:

"I just can't live any longer. This has got to be too much for me. I am going to end it all."

Here was a real life tragedy—stranger, more poignant than any conceived by even the imaginative writers of the long run of movie "murder thrillers."

Benita Bischoff—that was her

State Marks 250th Year of Penn Grant

PHILADELPHIA, March 4.—Pennsylvania today observed the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the granting to William Penn by Charles II, King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, of the territory that is now the Keystone State.

Pennsylvania failed to officially recognize the day until four years ago when the Legislature passed an act designating March 4 as Pennsylvania Day. It is not a legal holiday.

Democrats Plan New Plank; Old One Still Unused

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Democrats meet in Washington tomorrow for the first time in years. It's a two-day excursion.

They're going to count noses. And hope they're all red.

The idea is to draft a 1932 presidential plank. They haven't used the 1928 one yet.

Atmosphere is tense with suspicion and distrust. Ideal climate for conventions. It is supposed to be friendly. But the worst fight we ever saw was at a picnic.

This Democratic rally marks the end of the second year of Mr. Hoover's reign.

That's appropriate. He was elected by the last Democratic rally.

Mr. Hoover still has two years to go and we do not see the

'DEATH' DRIVER GETS 7 YEARS

BEAVER, Pa., March 4.—Walter J. Doughty, 35, of Pittsburgh, driver of the Colonial Stages bus that crashed into the rear end of an automobile, near Ambridge, December 12 last, killing Max Dermis and Jacob Shriver, both of Pittsburgh, today was sentenced in the Beaver County Court by Judge Frank E. Reader to serve seven years in the Allegheny County Workhouse.

Doughty yesterday entered a plea of no defense to two charges of involuntary manslaughter and to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Doughty was sentenced to pay the costs and a fine of $1 and to serve three years in the workhouse on the intoxication charge, and was sentenced to two years on each charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Doughty told the court that he was sick when the bus left Cleveland and he had one drink of liquor at Youngstown, O., and after that he did not remember what occurred.

Additional loans were being released in the Pittsburgh district through other regional offices where veterans had filed claims for their first loans and must apply this time, according to Regional Manager Michael J. Shortley. No estimate was available to the extent of these loans.

That the peak of the loan rush had been reached was expressed by Shortley, though steady filing of applications was expected to continue for several weeks. Per-

Aimee's Daughter Marries Ship Purser in Singapore

LONDON, March 4.—(INS.)—Roberta Semple McPherson, 20-year-old daughter of the California evangelist, Aimee Semple McPherson, was married today to William Bradley Smyth, 23, purser of the liner President Wilson according to a Central News dispatch from Singapore.

The wedding, according to the information, took place in Wesley Church at Singapore.

The evangelist and her daughter reached Singapore from China en route to India, a short time ago. Mrs. McPherson plans to study at first-hand religious development of India and the women's part in the independence movement.

On the long trip from California to Hong Kong and Singapore Miss McPherson was regarded as being one of the most popular of the younger set aboard.

WOMEN SEEK FRAUD EVIDENCE TO FORCE JURY FOOD QUIZ

SCAN DATA ON CITY'S BUYING

Two Rugs Bought for Kline Without Asking for Bids; Council Fights Inquiry

A grand jury investigation into the food contracts loomed today, contingent on whether members of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters discover evidence of criminal irregularities in the books of Bertram L. Succop, deposed director of the Department of Supplies.

Frustrated by Council acting in committee session yesterday, in their plan to have an open hearing, the women said records would be scrutinized closely for evidence of criminality.

NOT INVITED

Today Mrs. J. O. Miller and Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, of the league's executive committee, conferred for 10 minutes with Controller J. P. Kerr, who has ordered an audit of Succop's records. The women said Kerr had not invited them to attend the audit—an invitation would have been welcomed—but they agreed that the audit was "a good thing."

The Finance Committee report will be presented Council Monday. The vote on its acceptance is expected to be the same as that of yesterday, seven to one, or seven to two. Councilman Charles Anderson cast the only dissenting vote yesterday in the absence of Robert Garland, who has stood by Anderson in his demand for an open hearing.

Two Elysian rugs costing $2,535 were purchased by Mayor Kline for his office without asking for bids, an examination of the records revealed today. One, 18x20 feet, cost $1,950, the other, 21x47 feet, $585 of the money raised by taxation. Under the law bids are required on all purchases over $500.

Mrs. J. O. Miller, member of the league's executive committee, who characterized Council's action as deplorable, declared today it was unlikely state authorities would be asked to take a hand in the food muddle.

ANDERSON ANGERED

Angered at Council's "first refusal to grant a public hearing to any individual or organization in my 12 years' service on that body," Anderson said today he would oppose approval of the committee report Monday. He favored, but did not hope for, action by the state. He said:

"It would be easier for a camel to get through the eye of a needle than for me to get anything from the folks at Harrisburg. I couldn't get anything more there than from Council, and that's darn little."

Hisses, jeers and laughter pervaded the Council chamber yesterday when the Finance Committee, composed of all members of Council, washed its hands of the food probe.

RECOMMENDATIONS

More than 100 women of the Voters' League crowded into the chamber to hear the committee vote on the resolution submitted by Councilman George Kambach, seconded by M. J. Muldowney. Contained in the resolution were seven recommendations. They were:

1. Ratification of Mayor Kline's discharge of Succop.
2. Recommendation that the Mayor co-ordinate the Supplies Department efficiently with other departments.
3. Preparation of a new set of specification standards for the department by the Mayor, so bidding can be "intelligent."
4. Adjustment of department personnel so efficient service may be obtained.
5. Commendation of the Bureau of Governmental Research for its part in the Mayor's secret "star chamber" probe.
6. Further recommendations upon receipt of reports that may be submitted by Controller James P. Kerr and the Research Bureau.
7. Refusal to duplicate the work of these executives—including the Mayor—by holding a public investigation, which it was held would hamper their activities.

Accusing Anderson of playing to the gallery by his speech in the presence of the women visitors, Chairman W. Y. English drew the verbal fire of the audience.

Rapping for order, English said, amid the hisses and laughter:

"Mr. Anderson, it is your actions that help sponsor this sort of a demonstration."

was general agreement that the court was clothed with full power to ask for an investigation and it did so in the public interest.

In 1910 Pittsburgh had two councilmanic bodies, the common and select branches of about 104 members. The present "business men's council" came into existence when the old system was abolished because of the scandal.

MANY JAILED

Numerous councilmen, upon conviction, were sent to jail and the penitentiary by Judge Robert S. Frazer, now chief justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, who sat as a trial judge.

The offense for which these men were convicted consisted of the acceptance of bribes amounting to from $100 to $10,000 or more, their share of loot for passing a bank depository ordinance, giving the city deposits to certain favored institutions.

During that period there was a cry of "turn the rascals out," resulting in the complexion of the City Council being changed and many other reforms put into effect. This happened during the administration of the late Mayor George W. Guthrie, who later became ambassador to Japan.

Legal lights who have studied the present situation in the Department of Supplies say that obvious splitting up of large orders so that purchases can be made without advertising for bids constitute a basis for court action.

Juggling of specifications and trick specifications also could be looked into as grounds for prosecution, they say.

KERR EXPOSES MEAT CHEATING

tected and sent back. This meat had been stamped 'inspected' with a fake or duplicate stamp. We decided to beat the cheaters at their own game. We had tags printed with a seal and serial numbers. As soon as the meat was inspected the tag was sealed. That put an end to that kind of cheating."

COW MEAT CHEAPER

Cow meat can be purchased from five to eight cents a pound less than steer meat, Dr. Kerr pointed out. The shipment from the Chicago firm was rejected last July. Regarding the adjustment of five cents a pound he said:

"We forced the settlement on the basis that if they did not give the city this rebate, we would place their concern, a reputable one, on the unsatisfactory list."

Confirming orders for green goods were issued with his approval, Dr. Kerr declares. He states that the method of direct purchases is the only practical one for this type of goods, and has enabled the city to get quality vegetables at 40 to 60 per cent less than inferior goods bought under the bidding system.

CHECKS PURCHASES

However, Dr. Kerr instructed his inspectors to accompany an employe of the Department of Supplies and see that the best was purchased at the lowest prices. He will make an inspection trip to the produce district tomorrow, he said:

"If the bulk of the goods has been purchased from one firm without prices from others being sought, I intend to stop that."

Regarding Charles R. Sable, one of the inspectors whose duty it is to see that good green goods are bought at the lowest prices, Dr. Kerr declared he is a trustworthy employe. He said:

"It was Sable that turned up the first bad carload of meat that went to Mayview."

Dr. Kerr said all the irregularities in the purchasing of city supplies cannot be charged to Succop. He said Succop perhaps had no knowledge of many things that were going on under him.

COVERS LONG PERIOD

Dr. Kerr said he was aware that irregularities had been going on for some time. He said he had been warned of some and did the best he could with a limited force of inspectors to check up. He said:

"We have withheld payment on vouchers in many instances, notwithstanding that some of my predecessors have passed the warrants on the pretext or belief that the contracts have been let and the supplies delivered."

CITES BROAD POWERS

Broad powers are vested in the Controller, Dr. Kerr declared. The law permits him to withhold payments on all purchases, he said, where fraud can be established.

The enormous quantity of supplies bought by the city makes it difficult to check up on dishonest concerns, he said. A remedy for these situations is being sought, he declared, and new specifications to allow all to bid on supplies are being sought.

John F. Freeman, 46, Negro, of Center avenue, convicted last week of voluntary manslaughter, was given the maximum sentence of 6 to 12 years in Western Penitentiary by Judge James H. The children, apparently unaware that a car was approaching, were said to have run across Smithfield street. The Ranuclik girl was knocked to the street, but her companion escaped injury.

SEEK GUN, MAN IN SHOOTING

East End police today were searching for the revolver which Joseph Deleo, of 7433 Susquehanna street, said he was cleaning when he accidentally shot himself in the stomach yesterday afternoon.

After taking the victim to Pittsburgh Hospital, police arrested his wife as a material witness, they said. She corroborated her husband's story. Police also were seeking a man from Swissvale said to have been visiting at the Deleo home at the time of the shooting.

'GIN MURDER' GIRL'S BODY EXHUMED

Court Orders Disinterment Following Application of Accused Youth's Counsel

International News Service.

REYNOLDS, Ind., March 4.—(INS.)—On a quiet, snow-mantled hillside, among the tombstones of her mother and other ancestors, grave diggers today brought the body of Arlene Draves out of the earth in order that it might be examined for additional evidence in the trial of Virgil Kirkland, charged with the girl's murder during a "gin party."

Arlene's brothers, Elmer, Carl and Kenneth, and her sister, Elsie, wept as the steel-cased casket was disinterred. Charles M. Draves, the father, suffered a nervous breakdown and could not be present.

The body was exhumed in accordance with an order granted in Porter County court late yesterday by Judge Grant C. Crumpacker upon request of the defense.

The casket was transported in a hearse to the City Hall of this village, where a new postmortem was to be made on the body in an attempt to show that evidence of vitalim portance to Kirkland's defense had not been secured in the original autopsy.

A dispute between attorneys over the surgeons to represent the defense delayed the postmortem examination for a time. None of the Draves family attended the examination.

The trial was suspended until tomorrow while the new autopsy is in progress.

Kirkland was not a witness to the grim proceedings here, but was represented by a defense attorney. The youth, who, with four other companions, is charged with attacking the Draves girl at the height of the liquor orgy, remained in Valparaiso under guard during the day.

BRIDGE WIDOW DESCRIBES SHOOTING

Collapses on Stand as She Tells How Mate Was Slain After Card Quarrel

KANSAS CITY, March 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Myrtle A. Bennett, accused "bridge quarrel" slayer, took the stand today and described the shooting of her husband, John G. Bennett, as accidental. Her recital of the tragic end of their bridge game was halted when the witness was overcome by emotion.

Speaking in a low voice, Mrs. Bennett began her testimony with the bridge game which the state contends led to Bennett's death. As she recounted her version of the events climaxed by the tragedy, Mrs. Bennett's voice rose, she became extremely nervous, finally breaking down when she told of firing the bullets which killed her husband.

"HE SLAPPED ME"

Asked what if anything her husband did to her when they quarreled over their bridge playing, Mrs. Bennett replied:

"He slapped me."
"Hard or easy blows?"
"Hard."

Mrs. Bennett said her husband then declared his intention of beginning a business trip that night instead of in the morning as previously planned. She said she went to talk to him in a living room closet where he was reaching for his bag, adding:

"I just thought it would be better to try to make him feel better, to ask him not to go and to apologize to our guests. He told me to get his gun."

GOES FOR WEAPON

Mrs. Bennett said the gun was in a dresser drawer in her mother's room. Other witnesses previously testified Bennett habitually carried his pistol on business trips.

Between sobs, Mrs. Bennett told of walking from her mother's room to encounter Charles Hofman, bridge game participant, who exclaimed:

"My God, Myrtle, what are you going to do?"

She said:

"I stumbled over a large chair. I don't know how it happened. Something struck my arm. The gun discharged. I was scared to death.'

The witness said she started through the door and met Mr. Bennett.

"He was running toward me. When he got to me, he grabbed hold of me. He caught my arm and twisted it. Somehow in the scuffle the gun discharged. I don't know how it happened—but that's what happened."

VICE WITNESS' CHILD SUICIDE

name—was a freshman at Audubon High School. Up to last Thursday, when screaming newspaper headlines told of her mother's death, she was lively, vivacious, gay. Like her mother, she was dark and attractive. She was one of the most popular girls in school.

Crushed and broken by the tragedy of her mother's death, she shrank from the glances of her playmates and then she decided to refrain from going to school.

Benita was found unconscious in her home by her stepmother, who had been in Philadelphia, where she is hostess in a department store tea room. She was rushed to a hospital in Camden, N. J., and died without regaining consciousness.

FATHER NEAR COLLAPSE

The girl's father, John Bischoff divorced husband of the slain Vivian Gordon, was in the district attorney's office in New York at the time, aiding police in their efforts to solve the slaying of his ex-wife. He had been questioned by the police. He appeared near collapse when he learned of his daughter's suicide and left immediately for Audubon.

Five days before Benita's mother was slain, choked to death with a clothesline and her body tossed into Van Cortlandt Park, Vivian Gordon had appeared before officials who are conducting the inquiry into the "framing" of women by members of the police department's vice squad.

Miss Gordon had begun her story of having been "framed" in March, 1923—eight years ago—by her husband, Bischoff, and Patrolman Andrew J. McLaughlin. She charged that Bischoff caused her entrapment so that he could obtain custody of Benita. She was sent to Bedford Reformatory, lost her daughter, and when she came out of jail she turned to the gay life of Broadway.

ALICE KOBZAREFF
Daughter of a Carnegie clergyman, she disappeared yesterday on her way to high school.

PASTOR'S CHILD DISAPPEARS

The 14-year-old daughter of a Carnegie clergyman, who left home to go to school, is missing today, and police all over Pennsylvania have been asked to try to find her.

The girl is Alice Kobzareff, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Nicholas Kobzareff, pastor of the Russian Orthodox Church in Carnegie.

Alice left home yesterday morning to attend classes in Carnegie High School. Her brother, Nicholas, discovered she did not reach the school.

Today the Sun-Telegraph received a letter with a Carnegie postmark which told of a girl of Alice's description being kidnaped in the street by two men in an auto.

The description of Alice, broadcast over the state teletype, is: Five feet five inches tall; brown eyes, dark brown curly hair; beauty mark on left cheek; dressed in a brown broadcloth coat, black satin dress, gunmetal stockings and black kid pumps.

DEASY URGES RAIL-BUS PLAN

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(INS.)—Practical plans for co-ordinating rail and highway transportation without imposing restrictive regulations upon buses and trucks were presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission today by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

John F. Deasy, vice president in charge of the Central Region, made recommendations for a national policy toward cheaper and more economical rail and highway transportation, describing the use of trucks in transporting freight in substitution of local peddler trains over 49 routes operated by the railroad.

In Deasy's opinion, the passenger bus has a place in modern transportation. He outlined four different types of operation for bus service in conjunction with railroads. They were replacement of train service in whole or in part; speeding up of trains by the elimination of local stops; feeder lines, and supplemental to rail service.

Mr. Deasy concluded that the railroads are entering upon a period of expansion into new forms of transportation and that the process is "essentially an economic one and not regulatory or legislative."

BIG MAGEE FEE BARED AT QUIZ

Former Pittsburgh Mayor Received $32,000 From P. R. T., Letter States

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, March 4.—William A. Magee, former Pittsburgh mayor and attorney in utility cases, was given $32,000 as a fee for aiding in the Philadelphia Rapid Transit case in 1924, it was brought out in the Senate committee investigating utilities today.

This, a mere statement of fact in a letter to the committee from Coleman J. Joyce, former Pittsburgher, was one item in the $226,000 recorded as Joyce's income in 1924.

BANK BOOK SUBPENAED

Joyce and his bank books were ordered subpenaed yesterday by the committee as an aftermath of testimony introduced last week. While Joyce said that he received $40,000 a year as counsel and vice president of the Philadelphia Transit Company, the Governor's counsel, William A. Gray, read into the testimony that official testimony in the Philadelphia case showed that the Mitten concerns gave him $226,000 that year.

Joyce was a former employe of the Public Service Commission, leaving a $5,000 job there in 1919.

The Senate committee announced today that J. H. Shearer, of the Edison and Portage Electric Company; C. H. Memory, of the Cresson Electric, and John E. Snyder, of the Hershey Electric, have been subpenaed to explain about net incomes of their properties exceeding 30 per cent in 1929, as charged by Gov. Gifford Pinchot. The committee today began an investigation of the charges.

COMMITTEE DISSENSION

While dissension smolders in the Senate committee investigating the public utilities, the House committee headed by D. Glenn Moore swings into action tomorrow. Three weeks of rapid-fire questioning, it was learned today, is expected to complete the House inquiry. The schedule has been drawn up. Gov. Pinchot today may name officially two counsel for the committee, and the final organization meeting is planned for late today.

Tomorrow, from Luzerne and Lackawanna counties, 100 complainants will converge upon the capital to tell their story of exorbitant rates alleged as a result of the increase the Public Service Commission permitted the Scranton Spring Brook Water Service. Leading them will be the white-haired, dynamic Msgr. John J. Curran, the priest who warned the Senate committee last week that militia, the Army, the Superior Court would be unable to force his people to pay the additional charges."

The Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's and Pittsburgh member of the House Advisory Committee, was expected to attend this afternoon's meeting of that group.

Walter D. Ludwig Named Forester

HARRISBURG, March 4.—(AP.)—The appointment of Walter D. Ludwig, of Chambersburg, as forester in the State Department of Highways, was announced here by Gov. Pinchot. Ludwig succeeds John W. Keller, who recently was named deputy secretary of forests and waters. Ludwig will assume his duties March 16.

Greensburg Bank President Dead

Constance Bennett, Film Star, to Radio Styles

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—(Universal)—Constance Bennett, often called the smartest-dressed woman in Hollywood, will discuss styles over the radio tonight at 8:30, Pittsburgh time.

Miss Bennett will be interviewed by Louella O. Parsons, motion picture editor of the Hearst newspapers and Universal Service.

This is the fourth interview in a series sponsored by the California fruit growers that is heard each week over the Columbia broadcasting station in a national hook-up that reaches every hamlet, village and city in the United States.

Miss Bennett, who is one of the most popular young women on the screen and who receives an enormous amount of fan mail each week, will have many interesting things to talk about.

Miss Parsons says she will ask Miss Bennett to tell something about smart clothes, but she says that she wants the radio listeners-in to be surprised and therefore she does not think it's a good idea to tell all the things that she and Miss Bennett expect to discuss.

Those who have heard Wallace Beery, Mary Pickford and Bebe Daniels in these weekly chats will be waiting to listen in on Constance Bennett.

Coolidge Sees Tolerance Increased by Adversity

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 4.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Among the other deflations that have taken place in the past months there appears to have been a very wholesome deflation of a spirit of too much arrogance. Individuals and nations are not so self-satisfied as they were. They are more tolerant, more humane and more charitable one toward another.

Calvin Coolidge

In the reaction the world has gone through the period when nearly everybody was engaged in helping themselves with little regard for anybody else. An excessive nationalism and excessive individualism were apparent. They continued into the first phase of the business decline. If they are not yet entirely dissipated they have been modified by the more reasonable attitude of concession and co-operation. Friendly individual interest has furnished credit, Charity has given relief. Diplomatic negotiation has solved problems of armament and colonial relationship which were insolvable under the reign of arrogance.

In the midst of deflation the world has made a moral progress. It is probable that this arrival of reason marks the turning point. We are entering the second phase where men and nations realize that they need the help of each other and that salvation must be sought by helping each other. When people work together nothing is impossible.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

COMPARE ZOO, MAYVIEW FARE

at 3 p. m. she rounded out another happy day in captivity with three bananas, a bunch of choice celery, a head of iceburg lettuce, a handful of figs and half an apple.

MAYVIEW MEALS

At Mayview the inmates of the men's section at the home sat down to a breakfast of oatmeal, bread, butter, milk and coffee. For lunch they had vegetable soup, boiled beef and bread and the evening meal consisted of spaghetti, bread, butter, coffee and stewed fruit.

Special attention is paid to dieting in both institutions. A diabetic patient at Mayview, for instance, had for his lunch brown bread and butter, stewed tomatoes, string beans, succotash, mashed potatoes, baked apple and milk.

At the zoo the buffaloes and deer had raw cabbage; the bears got carrots, bread and fish. Polar bears, pelicans and sea lions ate their fill of fresh herring, and the small snakes had mice. Bob, Cassowary ostrich with neither feather, wing nor tongue, consumed a goodly quantity of crushed oats, alfalfa and bread in the morning and in the afternoon had two heads of lettuce and 12 bananas.

WHAT MONKEYS EAT

Thirty-two monkeys at the zoo consume daily 18 loaves of bread. For breakfast they get bread, cooked potatoes and carrots for lunch, and chopped bananas, apples and dates at 3 o'clock. Daily menus at the zoo are carefully selected, according to the keepers. Carniverous animals receive horse meat; the reptiles eat guinea pigs, rabbits and pigeons; the birds, fruit and grain.

In two weeks' time, according to zoo attendants, the monkeys, birds, bears, elephants, buffalo and deer consume five bushels of apples, four barrels of cabbage, five sacks of potatoes, eight bushels of carrots, three bunches of bananas, two crates of lettuce, two dozen oranges and two dozen stocks of celery. In one week alone the sea lions consume about 270 pounds of fish.

BARE NECESSITIES

The average cost of feeding at Mayview is 30 cents a day per person. This includes doctors, nurses and other employes as well as patients and non-producing inmates who are fed only the bare necessities, or as officials of the Department of Welfare explain, on a "basic diet."

There has been no demand by the zoo management for produce of the highest grade, it was learned. Fresh vegetables of a good quality are considered by animal keepers as an important part of the diet of caged animals. The local zoo has established an enviable record in the care of its animals.

Slate Fall Victims On Way to Recovery

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., March 4.—Albert Johnson, 27, and Arthur Waterloo, 30, injured seriously in a fall of slate in the Newfield mine of the Union Collieries Company, near New Bessemer, two weeks ago, were recovering today in the Citizens General Hospital. Johnson, his right leg crushed, made his way on a mine car to spread the news that his buddy was pinned under a rock. Waterloo suffered head lacerations.

Relief Plan to Put 1,100 To Work on City Jobs By March 12

More than 1,100 men will have been given employment by March 12, through additional requisitions made today, the Allegheny County Emergency Association announced.

City Engineer Charles M. Reppert asked for 300 more men today to work on relief sewer construction. Of this number 150 will go to work Monday, others will be assigned March 12. Tomorrow, 218 others will start work on dirt-street improvements.

MAC LEAN WEDS FILM ACTRESS

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—(AP.)—Douglas MacLean and Lorraine Eddy, film actress, were married yesterday at the bedside of the bridegroom's 80-year-old father, the Rev. C. C. MacLean, who celebrated at the same time the fifty-eighth anniversary of his marriage to Mrs. MacLean.

Dr. and Mrs. MacLean had planned to make the marriage of their son a part of the celebration of their anniversary. Last week Dr. MacLean was stricken with paralysis.

The condition of the aged minister was serious, but he asked that the wedding and celebration take place as planned, even though the setting would be a bedroom rather than a chapel.

Superior Court Judge Edward T. Bishop united the couple. Because of the father's health there was only one attendant, Walter Burke, an attorney, best man.

It was the second marriage of the son, formerly a film actor and now an associate producer, and also Miss Eddy's second matrimonial venture. He is 37 and she 27. There will be no honeymoon until Dr. MacLean has recovered.

VETS INDORSE PLAN

The American Legion of Allegheny County has indorsed the Pittsburgh Plan for stabilization of employment as presented by the association. Donald J. Howard, of the Chamber of Commerce, explained the plan at a meeting of the county organization in Fort Pitt Hotel last night. Forty-two Allegheny County delegates were present.

More than 250 men, the first to be employed by the city through the efforts of the Allegheny County Emergency Committee, received yesterday their first rewards for their efforts. The men were paid for the work they had done last week on city jobs.

LONG BETWEEN PAY DAYS

For many it was the first pay day in many months.

One of the workmen said:

"I walked from the Garfield district to collect my wages. I have four children, and they all need shoes. The rent has been due for several months, along with gas and electric bills. This money won't come near to paying it all, but it will be a start."

Married men living in the vicinity of Ingomar will be given preference when workmen are hired for construction of the new three-mile concrete highway between Ingomar and Mt. Nebo, said officials of D. W. Challis & Sons, Sewickley contractor, said. Work is to be started today. The project is to cost $200,000 and will require 100 men.

Rockefeller Scion To Wed German Girl

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP.)—The engagement of Paula Watjen to John Sterling Rockefeller, son of the widowed Mrs. William G. Rockefeller, was announced yesterday by Miss Watjen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander W. Watjen, of Bremen and Berlin.

John S. Rockefeller is the grandson of John D. Rockefeller's late brother, William, and of the late James A. Stillman.

Miss Watjen's father is the representative of the Guaranty Trust Company for Central Europe.

24 Wells Start Gas Rush 'Down East'

ITHACA, N. Y., March 4.—(AP.)—Twenty-four gas wells, the biggest estimated to produce $20,000 daily, are blowing today in the old "Down East" country and a new gas "rush" is on.

It is the trail of the pioneers reversed, the farthest East that a field of big wells yet has been located in this country. The development is concentrated in South Central New York and Northeast Pennsylvania.

GANDHI, VICEROY SIGN TRUCE

NEW DELHI, India, March 4.—(AP.)—Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, and Viceroy Lord Irwin at high noon today signed a truce which ends the Nationalist civil disobedience campaign and secures Nationalist co-operation in working out a qualified dominion status for India.

In return for abandonment of the civil disobedience campaign, which the Nationalists inaugurated a year ago in an effort to gain independence from Great Britain, Gandhi wrested from the viceroy an amnesty for all political prisoners held for non-violent offenses, the right of those residing on the seashore to make their own salt, and adjustments regarding the return of property confiscated for non-payment of taxes.

The truce concluded another chapter of the struggle of Indians to regain control of a veritable subcontinent containing 320,000,000 people—after more than a century of British domination.

The All-India National Congress, meeting at the end of 1928, gave Great Britain one year in which to grant dominion status.

BOWLES JURY READY TODAY

HILLSBORO, Ore., March 4.—(AP.)—Introduction of testimony in the murder trial of Nelson C. Bowles, Portland capitalist, and Irma G. Loucks, his former secretary, was expected to begin here today.

One juror and two alternates still were to be selected. Attorneys indicated these may be chosen with little delay. The two alternates will sit with the regular jury.

Bowles and Miss Loucks are accused of the murder of Bowles' wife, Leone.

When the jury is completed, the state is expected to ask that it be taken to Miss Loucks' apartment, where Mrs. Bowles died last November from a knife wound in her breast. The defense contends Mrs. Bowles stabbed herself.

LEWIS RETURNS, TWITS CRITICS

NEW YORK, March 4.—(INS.)—Sinclair Lewis, writing cynic, arrived home today on the Europa after receiving the Nobel Prize in Stockholm and castigating American customs in a speech there, only to defend his native land against the aspersions of an English lecturer.

The lecturer was J. B. Priestley, London writer, who made a speech last night in which he said Lewis was a propagandist and a writer of thesis novels, and declared that New York was the noisest city in the world. To this Lewis replied:

"New York may have the noisiest streets, but London has the noisiest lecturers."

When told that he had been classed with Michael Arlen, Lewis said:

"I don't know. Mike's a good dancer."

Lewis said American readers had been given the wrong idea about his speeches in Europe, which, he said, were not anti-American. He said he had half a dozen ideas for books in mind and would settle down to the job of writing one of them soon.

Sophie Tucker Gets Hisses, Then Ovation

PARIS, March 4.—(AP.)—Sophie Tucker, who left the stage at the Empire Theater to the accompaniment of hisses from the audience Monday night, was given an ovation after her act last night.

The American entertainer was repeatedly called before the curtain, indicating the customers wished to offset the previous hisses, said to have been inspired by her refusal to give an encore after three songs.

COSTELLO SUED FOR $100,000

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—(AP.)—Maurice Costello, a former Pittsburgher, film star of 20 years ago, was made defendant in a $100,000 breach of promise suit filed by Vivienne Sengler, an artist.

The action marked the second time the suit was filed. The original complaint was filed in December, 1929, and dismissed the following September upon motion of Miss Sengler's attorneys.

The new complaint contained the same allegations as the first, to wit, that Costello proposed marriage to her at Stockton, Cal., September 10, 1928, and failed to carry out his alleged troth.

Costello and his wife were divorced in 1927. He is the father of Helene and Dolores Costello, film actresses, the latter the wife of John Barrymore.

Sound-Vibration Register Makes Motion Picture Of Human Voice

An unusual and interesting demonstration showing high and low spots of a person's voice was given this morning in the University of Pittsburgh.

When Prof. H. S. Scribner, head of the Greek department, spoke the Greek word "eureka" into a device curious lines conveying the effect of a double-speed movie wriggled across a small screen.

The lines showed the maximum and minimum vibration range of the Professor's voice. The instrument, a new device developed in Westinghouse research laboratories, makes it possible for observers to distinguish the "pure" from the compound notes or tones.

According to W. O. Osbon, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, this is the first time that a movie talkie of a human voice has been exhibited publicly in a lighted room.

French, German, Spanish and English words were spoken into the device and other curious lines wriggled across the screen.

The sound register makes movies of other sounds as well as those of the human voice. When a stone is dropped in a pond the device enables one to see the sound waves which the splash creates just as the eye sees the water waves.

ECKENER LANDS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 4.—(INS.)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the German Graf Zeppelin, arrived in New York today on the Europa on his way to Akron, O., where he will confer with officials of the Goodyear Rubber Company on the building of two new Zeppelins. He will leave New York tomorrow night.

Dr. Eckener also wants to work out plans to change the design of the new Zeppelin his own company is building in Germany so that helium instead of hydrogen can be used.

This decision was made after the R-101 disaster, he said. His new ship will have to be 20 per cent larger and will be delayed a year by the change in design. The airship will be ready at the end of next year.

After his return to Germany, April 9, Dr. Eckener will make a passenger flight to Egypt in the Graf. In July he hopes to make a five-day flight over Franz Josef land and St. Nicholas land in the Arctic to note how the ship performs under polar conditions.

First Payday for Men Who Did City Work Under Allegheny County Emergency Plan

sonal applications made today by veterans totaled 11,113 by mid-afternoon, including the various headquarters established by veterans' organizations and the regional bureau.

WORK SPEEDED

Work at the regional bureau was speeded today, Manager Shoultley said, by veterans applying for application blanks and assistance at the various headquarters established by the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Sun-Telegraph. With fewer men applying at the office the large staff of clerks is enabled to devote more time to filing applications prior to mailing checks.

Rumors that a veteran cannot borrow a sum exceeding $500 was denied by Shoultley. The law provides a 50 per cent loan on the face value of the adjusted compensation certificates. Loans are being paid without limitation, as to the amount, it was said.

MANY MORE APPLY

Many veterans who had failed to obtain their compensation certificates are now applying at the various headquarters, County Commander John B. Nicklas, Jr. of the Legion, and County Commander James Pirt, of the V. F. W., reported. Both urge that such ex-soldiers withhold these applications for several weeks. Two years must expire following issuance of an adjusted compensation certificate before a loan can be obtained. Applications at this time will not be of material benefit, it is pointed out, and will hamper the efforts of the regional office in devoting full time to preparing loans.

The Sun-Telegraph today continued its co-operation with all veterans' organizations, as has been the policy of all Hearst newspapers since they waged the long fight for passage of the loan bill. Delivery of supplies to various post headquarters, printing of application forms to enable all headquarters to keep a plentiful supply and offering every available facility towards speeding the work of assisting veterans formed part of the paper's efforts.

ADVICE BROADCAST

Radio broadcasts last night were used to further acquaint ex-soldiers with the procedure in applying for loans. Four stations were used by veterans organizations through efforts of the Sun-Telegraph. The speakers were County Commander John B. Nickles, Jr. of the American Legion over Station WCAE, Judge John P. Egan, WJAS; Judge D. Paulson Foster, KQV; and Veterans of Foreign Wars County Commander James Pirt, represented by Frank Dixon, KDKA.

Members of the Eighteenth Division Veterans' Association were assisting the V. F. W. Service Bureau, in the Plaza Building, in handling veterans' applications.

Man and Wife Killed By Poison Liquor

BRIDGEPORT, O., March 4.—Ambrose Swanberger, 43, and his wife, Azelia, 42, are dead today, police say, from drinking denatured alcohol. The wife was found dead in her home and her husband, found unconscious, died early today in Martins Ferry Hospital.

Samuel Bershoff, of Wheeling, alleged to have carried liquor to the place, is held in jail here.

D'Annunzio Cured Of Influenza Attack

GARDONE RIVIERA, Italy, March 3.—(AP)—Gabriele D'Annunzio, Italy's soldier-poet, was pronounced cured of an attack of influenza from which he had been suffering several days.

HOW TO GET BONUS LOANS

Veterans can obtain bonus loan application forms, information and assistance in filling out blanks from the Veterans' Bureau Regional Office, 5118 Penn avenue (telephone number, Montrose 7381), but it is suggested that in order to speed work, applicants apply to The Sun-Telegraph main building, Bigelow boulevard, or downtown office, Fifth avenue and Market street. Veterans of Foreign Wars Bureau, 314 Plaza Building; 40-8 Society, 403 McCance Build, Smithfield street and Liberty avenue; the American Red Cross, Chamber of Commerce Building, or any veterans' headquarters listed on this page.

Following are steps to be taken by ex-soldiers seeking loans:

1. Go in person or write for a "Veteran's Note," form 1185 of the Veterans' Bureau, from any of the agencies listed above. Mention if a previous loan had been obtained and where.

2. Sign the note and insert the number of your adjusted service certificate and home address in spaces indicated.

3. Have the "Certificate of Identification" on the note executed by a Postmaster, an officer of a veterans' organization or a notary public. This action is unnecessary if there has been a previous loan.

4. Hand or forward by registered mail the note to the Regional Veterans' Bureau office. Mailing is urged as the quickest method. If the application is for the first loan ever sought, note must be accompanied by the bonus certificate as collateral security. If previous loans have been granted, the bureau continues to retain the certificate, and application must be made either to the regional office which granted the previous loan or to the Central Office, Veterans' Bureau in Washington.

5. Needy veterans will receive their checks earlier if more fortunate comrades delay their applications a little.

Agencies of V. F. W.

Veterans of Foreign Wars posts are rendering nightly service to ex-soldiers from various neighborhood headquarters.

County Commander James Pirt announced that all posts listed herewith maintain evening hours from 7 to 9 p. m. One exception is in McKeesport where the Corp Everett Post No. 514 offers service day and night. During the day, veterans can apply from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. at the Diamond Garage, Market street and Fourth avenue. Assistance will be given at night from 7:30 to 9 p. m. in the post home, 1 or 1/2 st. street. David Schwartz will be in charge.

Following is the list of V. F. W. posts:

NORTH SIDE—Mallate Post No. 12, Old City Hall, Federal and Ohio streets; B. C. Munemaker in charge.

EAST LIBERTY—Trees-Carlisle Post No. 166, Y. M. C. A., 122 Whitfield street; Paul Taylor.

2 File Voluntary Bankruptcy Pleas

J. Kennedy Spafford, of 447 West Fifth street, Erie, filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in Federal Court. He listed his assets at $200, the value placed on a wrecked automobile. He placed his liabilities at $5,222.80.

A voluntary bankruptcy petition was filed by Alter Lipnich, of Nemacolin, Greene County, a merchant. He listed his liabilities as $13,950.52 and assets as $17,165.09. The latter amount was represented by stock, machinery and accounts owed the petitioner.

Fire Routs Woman, Children From Home

Mrs. Mary Yereb, her two children, John Robert, 4, and Esther Marie, 2, were forced from their home yesterday afternoon when fire damaged the three-story frame house at 5 Ivory place, North Side. Batallion Chief Daniel Jones estimated the loss at $1,500. Louis Furlong, a neighbor, aided Mrs. Yereb to move all her first floor furniture to the street. Mrs. Yereb said she thought the blaze was caused by rats chewing matches behind the walls in the living room, where the fire started.

HEARST LAUDED FOR BONUS AID

SEATTLE, Wash., March 4.—(Universal)—Speaking in appreciation of the stand taken by Hearst newspapers in the fight for bonus loans to war veterans, Z. O. Brooks, of Goldendale, national executive committeeman of the American Legion for the State of Washington, said:

"Veterans of the World War, disabled by war wounds or otherwise in dire straits because of economic conditions, owe a debt of gratitude to W. R. Hearst and his newspapers on the successful passage of the adjusted compensation certificate loan bill. The valiant fight of the Hearst organization was materially instrumental in the passage of the legislation.

"The passage of this bill shows clearly that Congress will act in a hurry when public opinion is expressed. The clear, concise presentation of this sentiment by Hearst newspapers had much to do with our victory.

"The veterans and their families all realize and appreciate the aid they were given by the Hearst publications."

will buy their salt, since making it is a nuisance.

WISE ARE the British, knowing how to make concessions that cost nothing. For instance, when they sent Balfour here, he persuaded our official dodos to junk brand new battleships, costing tens of millions, some not fully completed. Britain kindly destroyed some handsome blue prints, and some old ships, not worth keeping.

Gandhi, perfectly sincere, is clay in the hands of the potter. He will not touch milk, saying it belongs to the calf. Britain would say:

"You are right about that, poor little calfy. We shall only skim off the cream and calfy shall have the skim-milk."

India is calfy, but better off that way, than in the old days before British rule.

IDLE WORKERS, rioting in Albany, seeking to influence New York's legislative assembly, made it necessary to call out the state police. They came to suggest a dole, twenty-five dollars a week for married, fifteen dollars a week for unmarried idle men. Our best minds fear the dole, and returning prosperity will find a way to avoid it.

Otherwise, direct giving of money to families in need might eventually seem wiser than handing it out through charitable organizations that need 30 to 60 per cent of the gross for "overhead," which means salaries, hotel bills, traveling and investigation expenses for an army of employes.

Crissy, Philadelphia broker, continues confident about winning a bet that he will dine with Hoover, golf with Jones and Rockefeller and golf or motor with the Prince of Wales within a year. CONGRESS ENDS SESSION AMID DISSENSION

Factions Fail to Establish Peace Before Houses Bring Session to Close

tion was enacted at the final session, when the House accepted the Senate amendments to the new veterans' hospitalization act, appropriating $20,850,000 for hospitals and soldiers' homes. Later a $5,000,000 appropriation was jammed through.

Hundreds of bills died with the expiration of Congress. The list was topped by the famous maternity aid act, the Vestal copyright bill, a measure slashing all immigration by 90 per cent for the next two years and a proposed embargo on oil products with a limitation of crude oil imports. Thomas gave the death blow to these bills by his filibuster, but they were doomed anyway because there were other senators ready to talk them to death.

"HOOVER CONGRESS"

It was called "the Hoover Congress" when it came into power simultaneously with the advent of the new administration in 1929. Republican majorities were large in both Houses. But "Hoover Congress" was a misnomer—for few Congresses in recent times have lashed more sharply or spectacularly with the President than the Seventy-first.

Mr. Hoover's honeymoon with the Congress that came into office with him lasted barely a few months. He called it into special session five weeks after his inauguration to take up the relief of agriculture and to revise the tariff. Trouble began almost immediately and continued intermittently throughout its life, culminating a few days ago in the overriding of his veto on the soldiers' loan bill by literally overwhelming figures.

VETOES 14 BILLS

Fourteen times has Mr. Hoover found it necessary to veto laws enacted by Republican-controlled houses.

Twice his vetoes were overridden by goodly majorities, and in other cases, notable on the Muscle Shoals bill yesterday, only the lash of the party whip enabled him to emerge victorious.

Legislatively, the record of the Seventy-first Congress is imposing, even though some of its most notable accomplishments are so disputed as to their efficacy they will be carried into the 1932 campaign as keen issues.

FARM RELIEF

Its first action of any consequence was the enactment of the so-called Hoover plan of farm relief, which set up a Federal Farm Board and provided it with $500,000,000 to improve the condition of agriculture.

Its second outstanding legislative enactment was the new Hawley-Smoot tariff bill, prescribing new and higher duties on thousands of commodities. The Democrats plan to make it an issue in 1932.

These were the principal products of the special session, which ended in November of 1929.

Other principal accomplishments of the two regulation sessions were:

Enactment of census and reapportionment laws, under which there is a generous redistribution of Congressmen among the states that have gained and lost in population since 1910.

Approval of the French debt settlement.

Ratified the London naval treaty.

Enacted legislation to transfer the enforcement of prohibition from the treasury to the department of justice, and increased appropriations and personnel for enforcement.

Abolished the old Federal Power Commission, and set up a new one, which is the center of heated controversy.

Created a new Tariff Commission.

Appropriated more than half a billion dollars for an enormously expanded public works program to meet unemployment.

Appropriated $65,000,000 to loan to farmers in the drought relief regions, after the most spectacular fight between Congress and the White House that the country has witnessed in years.

Longworth Sees Providence Pick Next Speaker

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(INS.)—Speaker Nick Longworth doesn't know who is going to be speaker of the House, he told his colleagues today in a humorous speech of finale just before adjournment. He said:

"The decision lies with none of us. An all-wise Providence will determine which of the great parties will organize the next House. Whatever Providence decides, I am abundantly satisfied."

The next House is almost evenly divided as between the parties and deaths or resignations prior to next December may determine which will have numerical superiority.

SHOALS ISSUE FOR '32

WASHINGTON, March 4.—As Congress adjourned today, Muscle Shoals again was the "political symbol." President Hoover predicted his veto would make it. Congress and Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, were no nearer today to forcing government operation of the huge war-time power and nitrate project than they were 10 years ago.

The Senate sustained the President's rejection of the Norris bill last night, 49 to 34.

In a preliminary statement issued last Saturday, Mr. Hoover predicted he would be accused of favoring the power trust if he vetoed the measure, and members of Congress were quick to make this prediction come true.

Senator Black (Dem.), of Alabama, said the people of the South who voted for the President in 1928 because of statements indicating approval had been betrayed. Norris also commented bitterly on the President's stand.

The administration may not fare so well next December if Norris once again presses his bill. The Congress which comes in then, with its uncertainty of control by either major political party, presumably would look far more kindly on the Nebraskan's efforts to have the government operate Muscle Shoals.

FIREWORKS BAN PARLEY FRIDAY

Officials of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and a committee of City Council will meet Friday afternoon to draft an ordinance prohibiting the use of fireworks in the city, James Ray, president of the chamber, said today. The chamber for some time has advocated such legislation.

Charles Dodd, chairman of the Life and Property Protection Committee of the chamber, will head the delegation which will meet with Councilmen Robert Garland, George Kambach and Harry A. Lutte. It is expected the ordinance will be ready for introduction next week.

Rum Runner Freed When Pals Steal Car, Evidence

WHEELING, W. Va., March 4. Two federal agents arrested an alleged rum runner who, they reported, was hauling 11 gallons of moonshine liquor in a car here. All proceeded to the Ohio County Jail where the automobile was left at the curb while the agents took their prisoner inside to book him for a hearing.

While they were inside the car, trouble with its cargo was stolen, presumably by conspirators of the prisoner. The evidence in the case being gone, the officers had to release their prisoner.

ALIEN VETERANS MADE CITIZENS

Eleven veterans of the World War, men of foreign birth who served in the United States Army, yesterday were admitted as citizens by the United States naturalization court.

It was the last day on which under an act of Congress passed March 4, 1929, alien soldiers in the American Army could be naturalized without having first papers, payment of fees, or regular residence requirements. Under the act they received citizenship immediately upon establishing Army records and good characters.

A similar bill for admission of foreign-born soldiers is now before Congress.

know. I'll keep my promise to make her our heir some day. Think of all the good times she'll have spending our money.'"

CROSS-EXAMINED

Father Cox was cross-examined about the nature of Dorothy's illness, why an operation had been needed. He replied that he didn't know. Asked what angle Mrs. Moore seemed worried about mostly, in regards to her daughter, Father Cox said:

"Mrs. Moore seemed concerned in all ways."

Depositions were introduced by Attorney Herman Pollock, of New York, to show that Lillian Russell earned large sums of money before and after her marriage, and up to the time of her death. According to a deposition by James H. Gordon, of New York, head of the R. K. O. contract department, formerly holding a similar position with Keith's, Lillian received a total of $109,750 for 43 weeks on the Keith circuit, at $2,500 weekly, and one week at $2,250.

CHECKS SHOWN

Checks were presented to show that in 1921 the International Magazine Company paid her $15,000 for publishing her autobiography, and that she received $96,000 in eight weeks, $1,000 monthly, for publication of health and beauty articles under her name.

Mrs. Nan Laney, a Negro woman, of McKeesport, Dorothy's private maid in Moore's home, took the stand and said Lillian paid all the store and household bills, including salaries of seven servants, from her own money. Records were introduced to show that department stores received more than $4,000 from Lillian's own estate after her death.

Mrs. Laney testified she once heard Moore heatedly discussing a laundress with his wife. He had told the servant, Mrs. Laney said, that she could eat luncheon at their home, but would have to eat dinner at her own place. Lillian objected, declaring as long as she was keeping her pre-nuptial agreement to pay household bills from her own substantial estate, the servants would do as she directed.

DRYS ARREST 3 IN 7 RAIDS

Two slot machines and a small quantity of moonshine were reported seized by prohibition agents and constables in a raid yesterday on a building at 34 Braddock avenue, Braddock, where Thomas Janton and his wife were arrested. Each was released on a $1,000 bail bond.

Twelve cases of home brew found in the home of Annie Wozel, at Coverdale, resulted in her arrest, agents reported. Another raid in Coverdale, on the home of Charles Hopson, yielded the raiders six gallons of moonshine, they said. Liquor law violations were reported at two other dwellings raided in Coverdale and two in Braddock.

object of this premature caucus. If you don't play golf why should you replace another man's divots.

Hostile Democrats fear that Raskob is trying to revive the wet question. The dry Democrats oppose this. A dry Democrat is a man who will not vote "yes" when invited to a drink. But he will nod.

So far as results will aggregate in the total, this Democratic meeting will only be the Wickersham report wired for sound.

The boys will get together, kick it around, put it together again and then leave by the most hospitable exits. And when they are through embarrassing the administration, Mr. Hoover will still be two up and two years to go.

The writer realizes that he will never be a big executive. His feet don't look nice enough on a desk.

Psychology of office furniture is an amazing offshoot of the study of bird life in the tropics. A man can tell you what he eats and you can tell him what he is. But don't forget that the waiter can spill it on the way up from the kitchen.

That is what we must allow for. Give and take. On a breezy day in the Rockies we have seen a grizzly bear being chased by a piece of red paper. Now, if that piece of paper had ever known it was pursuing such a dangerous animal it would have immediately turned around and hidden in an autobiography of some unknown manufacturer of stub pens.

That's psychology. All you need is a clue. Harness is either hanging on a hook or it is on a hoss, or you're driving an automobile. That's easy.

Take office desks. They are getting bigger and more important. We walked into one of those mahogany-lined offices the other day. We had to crash through 10 glass doors to get there. It might have been worse. They might have been windows.

There was a little man seated at a desk so big he looked like an infant prodigy playing a pipe organ. His swivel chair had four speeds forward and two reverse.

We didn't stay long. He was too important. They are writing "welcome" on mats now so you can read it either way. Going in or coming out.

That little man was a racketeer. That's what we wanted to tell you in the first place. He lacked personality and sought to impress visitors by the size of his desk. Why there were pigeon holes in that desk that wouldn't make bad apartments.

He was in the sour stock gadget. That's back again. It is one of the concomitants of prosperity. Which means that country is on the mend and the racketeers are on the make.

Wall street is booming. But don't fall for the mahogany office furniture. If you want to buy anything you'll do better trading with a guy whose office is a kitchen table.

All the sap bucket shops are decorated beautifully. That's how they catch fish. By hiding the hook under pretty bait.

If you must invest with little guys at big desks save enough money for an axe to smash the desk.

"Suffered over thirty years with acid indigestion. ACIDINE has helped me more than anything I have ever taken," says Mrs. Emma Green, of Detroit, Michigan.

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription, ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japsae, which in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis. Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, gassy headaches and sleeplessness trouble you, take ACIDINE. JUDGESHIP BILL PASSAGE SEEN

HARRISBURG, March 4.

Senator James J. Haines' bill to provide two additional judges for Allegheny County, signed and defended by Pittsburgh members of the bar, will be moved out of committee and may be passed Monday night.

A second County bill, by which City Council would be authorized to pay members of the Pittsburgh city cabinet salaries ranging from $8,000 to $12,000, also was expected to pass soon in the Senate.

The judge bill met opposition in a public hearing before the House Judiciary Committee yesterday. Judge James A. Gray, Arthur M. Scully and Alexander W. Lindsay protested that the two judges were not needed. Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, of the League of Women Voters, also testified that "the visiting judges were suitable to the purposes of the county."

Speaking in behalf of the bill were several leading criminal lawyers, Edward G. Coll, Louis Latibi, Benjamin Lenchet and Henry Ellenbogen. They declared Criminal Court was the "stepchild," and that "some judges had to be let over there."

Protests against the administration election code bill, sponsored by Senator Frank J. Harris and Representative Moore, also given a public hearing yesterday, were few. The chief objections were to the provision which permits the Governor to name the members of the county election boards, the unit supplanting the present varied election groups. Burne Evans, Harrisburg lawyer, one of the principal objectors, specifically made this point.

Legislator Caught In Hotel Rum Raid

OLYMPIA, Wash., March 4 (AP.)—Federal prohibition agents raided the Hotel Olympian headquarters for state legislators, arrested several persons, one mentioned as a member of the Legislature, and seized approximately 20 quarts of liquor last night.

D. E. Dunning, federal agent, said the legislator would be charged with possession of intoxicating liquor 60 days after the close of the 1931 session, when his immunity ends.

Alma Warned by Wallie Reed's Widow How Continued Use of Drugs Would End

Dorothy Davenport Visited Screen Star on Eve of Return to Hospital

By ALMA RUBENS.

CHAPTER XXIX.

When my mother took me home from that terrible place even my sodden and dazed brain told me that I could not stay among sane and decent people long.

I didn't know what to do myself, and I wondered what my mother and my husband were planning to do for me.

Early in the afternoon Dorothy Davenport called.

Dorothy Davenport is the widow of Wallie Reed, the well-beloved screen actor who died after a futile fight to break the dope habit.

I knew Wally and Dorothy very well, and loved them both. Wally was handsome, brilliant, generous, clever—everybody loved poor Wally.

He was at the top of the ladder in the world of the pictures, he had an unusual following among people who did not care at all for the coarser and more ordinary actors of the screen.

He was happily married, he was young, rich, successful—but dope got him, just the same.

Alma Rubens

Dope got him and dope killed him, just as it was killing me.

There was something strange about Dorothy on this particular afternoon when she came to see me. She seemed unusually sad, and I could see that she had something special on her mind. She talked with me about Wally, and his tragic death. I could see she was trying to make me realize what a terrible position I was in.

What is it she is trying to say, I thought. What are they planning?

She bade me goodbye with unusual fervor. She acted as if she never expected to see me again.

As she started down the steps she turned, opened her lips to speak, thought better of it, turned back again and was gone without another word.

I didn't know what it was all about, but I did know something was up.

For some time I had had a terrible dread of being sent to Patton, the insane asylum, of Southern California.

Every once in a while, when I was unusually unreasonable, someone in the family would warn me, and say:

"Alma, do be careful, or this will all end in Patton."

When Dorothy Davenport said goodbye, in such a strange way, I knew in my inmost heart that some one was planning to send me to Patton.

Long into the night, that night, I lay awake, trying to make up my mind, or what was left of my mind, what to do, where to turn, for help of deliverance from my hopeless slavery.

Toward daylight I fell into a troubled sleep.

Dreamed Again

I dreamed of the little churchyard again, where my little schoolmate and I used to go and put flowers on the grave of little Alice May.

My hands were full of yellow poppies and blue lupin, but when I stooped to lay them on the green grass of the little grave, they turned into snakes, and writhed in my hands. I woke screaming in terror.

It was broad daylight, and I had the feeling that someone was looking into my window.

I jumped out of bed, threw a dressing gown over my shoulders, and ran to the window, just in time to see two men dart into a hiding place behind a bush in our garden.

I knew it. I knew it the minute I saw them.

They were men, come to take me to Patton!

I wouldn't go! I would never go! I would kill myself first, but how, where, when?

Just as I was racking my brain for a plan a knock came at my door.

A doctor, who was also an old friend, stood on the threshold. He asked me how I was. I told him I was feeling well and asked him to sit down in the living room and I would get dressed and come down to see him.

When I sat down near him in the living room there was something strange about him. He did not meet my eyes as he had always done. He talked kindly and quietly.

Finally he took a deep breath, rose, and went to his medicine case.

Refused Drug

He took a bottle out of his case, found a glass on the table, and poured out a drink of a light brown liquid.

"Here, Alma," he said, "take a little, but of this, it is very fine, old Bourbon."

I knew that that liquor was drugged. I knew it as if I had seen the doctor put the drug into it.

"Thank you Doctor," I said, "I don't care for liquor at all."

All the time I kept thinking, "where is my mother, where is my husband, they are usually downstairs far ahead of me, why are they keeping out of the way now?"

The doctor walked to the window and made a signal. He turned around to me and asked if he might use the telephone. I told him yes, of course, and the minute he left the room I ran to the front door. It was a Dutch door, divided into crossways. The upper half was open. Two men stood there looking in.

"What do you want," I screamed, "you can't come in!"

"Take it easy lady," said one of the men. We are going to take you to the hospital." And as he turned, in an attempt to open the lower half of the door, I saw a great bulge in one of his pockets, it was a straightjacket. I knew that. I rushed to my room and locked the door. I ran into my bathroom and locked the door. There my eyes fell on a sharp butcher knife lying on the bathroom clothes horse, how it got there I have no idea, but there it was. I seized it.

I heard the door to my bedroom give and I knew that the doctor, and the two men were in the room. I put a little bathroom chair under the knob of the door. "I have a butcher knife here," I said, "try to open this door and I'll kill myself!"

2 DAMAGE SUITS IN U.S. COURT

Two damage suits were filed yesterday in Federal Court. In one L. L. Walden, of Arnold, seeking $20,000 from the Ward Baking Company, declared he was injured when a truck of the company hit an automobile he was driving on the Legionville Bridge, Beaver County, June 13, 1929. He charged negligence by the truck driver.

Alexander M. Toth, Jr., Pittsburgh, seeks $15,000 from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, asserting that, while working in the Glenwood shops, June 24, 1929, he was hurt when an engine tire dropped from a crane.

A verdict of $10,000 damages for injuries was awarded Mary T. Ricketts, 56 Marion street, in her suit against Leo G. Henry, of Jancey street, by a jury in Common Pleas Court before Judge Joseph Stadtfeld. An automobile in which she was a passenger was struck by Henry's car on Fifth avenue extension April 23, 1928, according to the testimony.

Real Estate

A two-family home of eight rooms at 1835 Cliff street has been purchased by George Lieon from Joseph Fisher through the offices of J. R. Womble & Co., Inc., brokers. The same brokers report that a seven-room house at 35 Saline place has been been sold by Louis Friedman to Alverta Moses.

The A. B. Forncrook Agency, brokers, has consummated an exchange deal in which John Dlabik conveyed to John A. Roberts four six-room frame houses at 929-31-1003-05 Belmont street, Wilkinsburg. In exchange Roberts gave title to a 226-acre farm in Dairy Township, Westmoreland County. The farm is improved with an eight-room brick house and outbuildings. The four houses brought $20,000, according to the brokers. Roberts paid the difference in cash.

The Pittsburgh Diagnostic Clinic, composed of 33 physicians, have made a long term lease for the property at 3509 Fifth avenue through James P. Donovan, downtown realtor. The clinic formerly occupied rooms in the Schenley Apartments, but, according to Donovan, required more space. Extensive improvements are planned for the leased property.

The Jenkinson Realty Company has sold for the heirs of Carrie E. Cruikshank a three-story house of 17 rooms and four baths at 911 California avenue, Avalon, to the First Church of Christ, Scientist. The church, according to the brokers, has leased the property, but intends to construct a new church on the site in the future. The lot measures 140x192 feet.

An improved property in Hillsdale avenue, Dormont, has been sold by William H. Kensinger to Peter Walker. The lot's size is 30x120 feet.

Applications for building permits follow:

First Ward—E. M. O'Neill, fire damage, 1342 Fifth avenue, $25,000.

Fifteenth Ward—J. Elin, brick extension, 4355 Murray avenue, $1,200.

BIG YEAR SEEN BY AUTO HEAD

Automobile dealers and manufacturers will make more money in 1931 with the same volume of business they had last year, according to C. L. Alexander, regional manager of the Chevrolet Motor Car Company, principal speaker at a Chevrolet sales convention today at Syria Mosque. One thousand retail salesman are expected to attend.

Mr. Alexander

In forecasting the 1931 automobile business outlook, Mr. Alexander said: "I feel that the industry as a whole will sell as many cars this year as it did in 1930. While the first five months may not be as good as the corresponding months of 1930, the last seven will more than equal the same months for last year."

Mr. Alexander based his forecast on the fact that during the adverse period of 1930 the company he represents in the Pittsburgh region, which comprises portions of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan, reduced its used car stock by 9,000 units.

Other factory representatives besides Mr. Alexander are C. L. Milliken, local zone manager, and W. G. Power, of the sales promotion department.

AH! Pain Stops

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail that it can not penetrate the flesh and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

Yet you'll find me at the crossroads store"

When Jack's ashore he's liable to be going several places at once! But there's one thing Navy men can get together on—whether in Hong Kong, Seattle, or Newtown Center: Taste is what they want in their cigarettes—the taste that comes from milder and better tobaccos, and from nothing else! They know their cigarettes, these men of the fleet. That's why Chesterfield is the Navy's choice!

They Satisfy
—that's Why!

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

A Harmless, Effervescent Drink

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, March 4.—Production men at the National Broadcasting Company, manuscript writers and actors, all aspire to create humor conducive to real laughs—the mirth of a Punch and Judy show combined with the hilarity of a dramatized comic strip. Through their efforts many comedy programs are now heard on the radio.

All of them are limited to 15 minutes—broadcasters believing that radio comedy is apt to wear pretty thin when stretched out for a longer period. Where at one time microphone comedy was confined to one or two periods, today finds more than a dozen popular comedy programs on the air. Strangely, all of it is exclusively of radio origin save that presented by Weber and Fields.

Some of the programs are relatively new, such as Sisters of the Skillet, which comes from the NBC Chicago studios. Ed East and Ralph Dumke, who write and act this program, are well known in the Middle West, and during the last few weeks have gained wide favor in the East.

East and Dumke concern themselves with disclosing such foibles of the human race as women encounter in their varied household and social activities. It is sheer nonsense—the kind of nonsense that is usually identified on the stage with such a zany as Jimmy Durante.

Snoop and Peep, a farcical detective program, played and written by Charles Finan and Paul Winkopp, is among the newer comedy periods. These men solve ridiculous situations, which they relate, for the most part in original song.

Obviously, such favorite laugh-provoking teams as Amos 'n' Andy and Jones and Hare cannot be overlooked. Jones and Hare are the original radio fun team, establishing their vogue several years ago as the Happiness Boys. Their technique has not changed notably with the years, and they still have an enormous following. They are the most industrious trappers of the modern wisecrack on the air. They also go in for puns, most of which they voice with an ever-disarming chuckle.

Amos 'n' Andy, the highest paid team on the air, have been able to present their characterizations of bewildered Harlem oafs for a year and a half on the networks to such a success as to convince the microphone monarchs that a radio program need not be short-lived if it is authentic and genuinely funny.

Today they have even heightened their hold upon the armchairs by adopting—perhaps, inspired by the sensational radio triumph of "The Trial of Vivienne Ware"—the procedure and atmosphere of the court room. The trial of Andy for the breach of a promise to marry Madame Queen is by all odds the most entertaining episode the black-face comedians have yet presented on the microphone.

The Cuckoo Hour, created by Raymond Knight, is the only radio period which attempts to parody broadcasting programs. Various microphone personalities are lampooned, but as yet Knight and his associates have discreetly—and regretfully—neglected to lift a derisive voice at commercially-sponsored periods. Effective ridicule of some of these periods would lessen the offensiveness of much of their ballyhoo. Of course, some financial reward would have to be sacrificed were they unrestrained in their activities, but in the long run radio would benefit and the coffers of the broadcasters would be even more teeming than they are at present.

Phil Cook creates his own songs, some based on current news, and simulates the voices of a number of characters. He also coins slang phrases, one of which, "OK, Colonel," won nation-wide favor with young America. Gene and Glenn (Gene Carroll and Glenn Rowell) who broadcast from Cleveland, are early morning exponents of whimsical humor.

Mixing antique jokes with modernistic mirth, Weber and Fields are winning a radio vogue which bids fair to make even their national reputation as the leading spirits of the most successful music hall ever established in America seem insignificant in comparison.

The stations in the Yankee chain are WNAC, Boston; WEAN, Providence; WLBZ, Bangor; WNBH, New Bedford; WORC, Worcester; WICC, Bridgeport and WDRC, Hartford.

Editor to Speak At University Club

Henry Goddard Leach, editor of the "Forum," will speak Saturday noon at the University Club on "Fifty Years From Now."

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

To dunk, or not to dunk, THAT is the question.

We hardly know what it's all about except that Graham McNamee, a modern Crusader on a hobby horse, is opposed to it, and "Doc" Rockwell, the comedian, is for it. The theme seems to be pot-likker, which we understand is made from a variety of things. Anyway, it's the subject of a debate on WCAE at 11:15 tonight with the aforementioned gentlemen doing the talking. There are many other better things, we're sure, but Miss De Leath these dunkers seem to have the right of way in the day's news. Vaughn de Leath celebrates her return to NBC in New York by singing with Olive Palmer et al on WCAE at 9:30. Other highlights are the Boswell Sisters (southern girls) on WCAE at 7, Evelyn Herbert doing the "Indian Love Call" on WCAE at 8:30, Constance Bennett, the movie star on WJAS at 8:30; Tandy Mackenzie and Mary McCoy as "Kathie" in a tabloid performance of "Student Prince" on KDKA at 9:30 and Prof. Albert Einstein in his farewell to America, WJAS at 10. Daddy and Rollo cook their own dinner on WJAS at 7:45.

Did Madame Queen faint because she saw her legal husband in the courtroom? Jim Long, sports expert, makes this guess.

Jim believes that Andy's lawyer has uncovered very damaging evidence in Albany, perhaps that Madame Queen was married there and forgot to get a divorce. On the last day of the trial, says Jim, the lawyer will explode the whole proceedings with his revelations. Let's see how near he is right.

QUESTION A DAY:

Who plays the part of Bobby in "Raising Junior?"—Eleanor Lewis, Masontown, Pa.

Answer—Our good friend Peter Dixon and his wife, the former movie actress, Aline Berry, make this a family affair with their son, David, on WJZ at 6 o'clock. Mrs. Dixon takes the part of "Joan." Raymond Knight, "Ambrose J. Weems," does the baby's crying. Dixon once worked on a Pittsburgh newspaper.

Roxy and Madame Schumann-Heink come to Syria Mosque on Monday night, March 23.

Interstate Broadcasting Company has assumed commercial and program management of WMBJ. Arthur Gorman announced today. Studios in Wood street, Wilkinsburg, are to be moved to a downtown building probably the Grant, Plaza or Jackson.

BUGGY RIDE

Someone stole Lou Kaufman's gas chariot last Monday night from Schenley and Aiken avenues. At 3:30 this morning the police roused Lou from slumber and told him that the thieves had returned it to the same place after removing all the gasoline. Lou said he wasn't exactly riled that the boys borrowed his car for a few days, but he wished they would pay the taxi bills of $19.40 that he has had to pay while commuting between his home, KDKA and his law practice.

WCAE is to inaugurate soon a series of educational talks to be used as part of the public school curricula in Pittsburgh—the very fine idea of J. L. Kaufman, station manager.

Remember "Last of Cairo" sketches? Suddenly the program disappeared from the network but we rejoice tonight to see the familiar character of "Saki" bob up in a program all his own, WJZ at 8:15. Also try "Riggs and Moke" on WCAE at 11.

STUDIO LIGHTS

"Cheerio"—Charles K. Field—writes that many Pittsburgh women are planning to celebrate his fourth anniversary on the air Saturday, March 14, by displaying the large red initial "C" in their windows . . . yes, those birds are real . . . M. H. Woodring, commercial manager at KQV now for five weeks, slips us the news that he helped build WWVA, WMMN, WLBW and at one time owned the Erie station, WEDH . . . Arthur Pryor is reported to have signed on the dotted line . . . Irene Bordoni is to receive $2,500 for her Sunday broadcast on Columbia . . . the networks bring three concerts from across the sea next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday . . . "Husk" O'Hare continues at WENR but with a new announcer . . . and the band is really good. WJJD at 8:45 and WENR at 12:30 in the morning.

Two of the prettiest signature songs on the air are "La Golondrina" (KDKA tonight at 6:15) and "Bird Songs at Eventide" for the "Songbird" (WCAE Friday at 9:30.)

Which reminds us that "Smile, Lady, Smile" and not "Swinging on a Five Bar Gate" is Andy Sannella's signature song for the Soups Orchestra in the morning.

There's a fellow in our office who has always been death on radio. Recently he was persuaded to purchase a set for his apartment. We have heard nothing since but all the wisecracks on the air. He hasn't owned his set long enough to learn that Phil Cook is saying "Okay, colonel" and not "Okay, colonial."

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Here's a Ripleyite—The Old-Timers Quartet on KQV at 8:45 tonight has rehearsed together for 28 years yet has never appeared in public or radio concert. And while speaking of quartets may we say that the Barbershop Group on WJAS at 8:15, made up of voices never before on the air, is one of the sweetest harmonies going.

ABOUT HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM LIFE; LOCAL AMUSEMENT NOTES

Conflict Between Studios Making Films Starring Barbara Stanwyck

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright 1931, by United Features Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 4.

Warner Brothers continue their drive to sign up as many stars as possible.

They have just put Barbara Stanwyck under a long term contract, and will feature her along with William Powell, Ruth Chatterton, Kay Francis and other newly-acquired stars.

Incidentally, there seems to be a conflict between Warners and Columbia's plans for the star of "Illicit." She has had vaudeville fittings, and is scheduled to start "The Miracle Woman" at Columbia tomorrow. On the other hand, she is supposed to begin "Night Nurse" for Warners next week.

Miss Stanwyck

Under the terms of her Columbia contract, Barbara still has to make two more pictures. Whether there will be an adjustment between the two companies or whether Warners see another way out remains to be seen.

In private life, Barbara Stanwyck is Mrs. Frank Fay. She made her first screen bid last year in Columbia's "Ladies of Leisure." Her latest picture is "Illicit."

INTERNATIONAL CALAMITY

El Brendel has been allowed to take the bandage off his injured eye.

"Can you imagine," he says, "a Swede working in a Nicaraguan picture, kicked by a Spanish girl wearing a French heel and ending up in a Jewish hospital. And all without a passport."

The little dancer who accidentally kicked him has quit pictures and gone back to New York. The picture was to have been her first.

LATEST GOSSIP

Blonde Virginia Cherrill now is seen about with Edmund Grainger, associate producer at Fox.

Virginia Cherrill

The young man's father is James R. Grainger, vice president and general sales manager of the company. Marlene White, boss-terious comedienne, has bought a 34-foot cabin cruiser and christened it "Alababa". Dick Arlen and Jobyna Ralston are vacationing in Del Monte, so that Dick can play in the golf tournament. He is one of the low-score players in the film colony. . . Fox his hired a Swede, Tom Johnson, to throw Victor McLaglan over a fence. He is 6 foot 6 inches in height and weights 250 pounds.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL

No man is a hero to his own family. One morning last week, Will Rogers showed up at the studio, driving a small roadster. On being asked where his big car was, Will replied:

"Out at our house, it's like the guys who wear the same clothes. Who ever gets up first gets the good cars. Daughter Mary had taken my regular bus, and when I went to get the car Mrs. Rogers gave me for Christmas, I found out she was up early and had taken it to Palm Springs."

CHARLIE CHAN AGAIN

It will not be necessary for Earl Derr Biggers to write an original Charlie Chan mystery story for Fox. The studio has decided that "The Black Camel," the title of which is a Chinese symbol of death, will do nicely. Warner Oland, old-time villain of the silent days and Dr. Fu Manchu, of the Paramount talkies, will play the bland oriental detective. It may be that the author will help with the adaptation during his stay in California.

MOVIE STARS HELP FIGHT FOREST FIRE

Motion picture companies on location are equipped for any emergency that might arise. This was evidenced recently when a forest fire of undetermined origin menaced the 2,700-acre Paramount ranch near Calabassas.

A company on location at the ranch filming scenes for "The Conquering Horde" was called upon for men first aid supplies, water, food, fire extinguishers and other equipment needed to combat the flames. The request was complied with immediately by Director Edward Sloman, who was in charge of the unit.

Sloman placed his entire company, headed by Richard Arlen, at the disposal of the forest rangers. The stars, director, players and workmen battled the flames for two hours and finally brought them under control.

FILM REALISM FEEDS EXTRAS FOUR TIMES

The problem of preparing dinner for 125 extras faced the property man at a New York studio during a sequence of "Honor Among Lovers." And it was more than an ordinary culinary problem for the meal had to be kept hot for a whole day.

The extras were cast as a group of college people dining in a Connecticut inn after a Yale-Army football game. They formed the background of a scene between Claudette Colbert and Frederick March, who are starred in the picture.

As the camera swept the interior of the crowded inn, Dorothy Arzner, the director, wanted it to catch glimpses of the extras in the midst of a real meal.

So "props" set up a temporary steam table in the wings of the set, to keep warm the steak, string beans, spinach and potatoes that were to be served. These 125 covers had been cooked in the Paramount restaurant kitchen just before rehearsals began.

Rehearsals occupied the entire morning, and in the afternoon the scene was shot four times to get different lighting effects and camera angles. Four times the meal was served, and four times the extras ate. Each time the food was steaming hot, thanks to the property man and his steam table.

Walter Winchell on Broadway

A Virtuous Lady Speaks

Yes, sell me an apple or a candy bar;
Sell me a Rolls Royce on a day like this:
I'll take insurance or a shiny star . . .
And, thank you kindly, a little kiss.

There—that small one hidden in your eyes—
Shining slyly like a diamond ring . . .
I'll take it with me for my own surprise,
Cherish it, guard it, the darling thing!

I'll keep it secret, exquisite, and strange,
And here, extravagant, is your change!

—Elspeth.

Nifty

Take it from Walter Buckley out in California: Rudy Valee is known as the "Croon Prince of America."

On Broadway, Anyway

"I saw that piece you wrote about Lillian Leitzel," writes a mourner, "and I was interested in the comment that many people go to circuses and other dare-devil performances not so much to be thrilled by the tricks and stunts, but they go with the anticipation of seeing somebody miss. That's putting it a little rough, isn't it? Do you honestly believe people pay money to see entertainers miss?"

Why do you think opening nights are so crowded?

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for the simile dictionary: Bugs Baer's: They flocked to him like sopranos to a microphone . . . Walt Streightiff's: The news spread like a runner in a silk stocking . . . And Ethel Watson's: The corners of his mouth drag like an old woman's petticoat.

Gag

Allan Cross, of Healy and Cross, offers this new one. It appears that certain Park Ave. antique dealers migrate downtown to the Ghetto to shop in little antique stores where they buy rare antiques which they sell uptown at fancy prices.

One Park Ave. man was inspecting an East Side shop last week and observed a cat lapping up milk from a platter, a real antique, worth thousands of dollars. He mused:

"Hmm, this Heeb doesn't know the value of that platter. I'll angle it from him." He offered $10 for the cat. The East Sider said: "But that's an alley cat."

"Never mind, I like him," said the man and he bought it. "You know," he added, "I'd like to buy that plate from which the cat was drinking. I'll give you $10 for the plate, too."

"I wouldn't part with that plate for $100," said the man.

"You wouldn't? Why not? I'm offering you money for it purely out of sentiment because the cat is probably accustomed to it."

"Well," sheepishly replied the other, "to tell you the truth, that platter has sold 142 cats for me already."

Hehehch

Sally Violinsky, now on the West Coast, received a letter from his theatrical club in New York, which is dunning its membership for back dues, according to Benny Holzman. The letter read:

"You owe $187 in back dues. Please remit."

Violinsky telegraphed: "Send the other $13 and I'll owe you $200 even."

Newspaperman Stuff

Lee Ross, of one of the tabloids in New York, wrote a "true" story for that page in his rag the other day which brought him $25.

The theme dealt with a newspaperman who lost his job because he reported late for work one morning.

The very day that his story appeared Mr. Ross was discharged because he overslept and reported tardy.

"Temptation"

I am too young to live without desire,
Too young to waste the lure of summer nights.
Why should I miss the thrill of touching fire—
And never know the deadlier delights?
Why should I ponder on old philosophy—
It is much better I should feel than know—
When lips are made to kiss and eyes to see—
(I've heard the Devil argue so.)

—Freddie.

Uncommon Sense

While leaving the Madison Square Garden fights with Mayor Walker we noticed that his bodyguard of uniformed men made no attempt to push, shove or make the crowd step out of His Honor's way. Mr. Walker merely ankled out to the street with the mob, with the coppers marking time before and behind him.

The crowd retarded his progress, of course, but it didn't matter. After the car sped down the street we said to the Mayor:

"That's the first time I ever saw you make an exit. Any other official probably would take his job seriously and have the police push and punch the crowd away."

"I never let them push or punch them," said Walker. "They might be Democrats!"

Between Hands

One of those wild poker games was being played by several locals the other night. In the game were George S. Kaufmann, the "Once in a Lifetime" collaborator; Sam Goldwyn, the movie impresario, and others. It was a card game in which the dealer named the card that was "wild"—having the choice to make the deuce, the five, the ten, the king, etc., the "wild" pasteboard.

When Goldwyn dealt he dialected: "I make tree's wild!"

"'Only God,' reminded Kaufman, 'can make a tree!'"

OPENING IS ADVANCED FOR 'STOLEN HEAVEN'

For "Stolen Heaven," Paramount talking drama starring Nancy Carroll and Phillips Holmes, the Fulton and Sheridan Square will advance their opening days this week from Friday to Thursday. Thus this picture, which the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors held up for several weeks, will open tomorrow instead of the following day.

"Stolen Heaven" is a drama that tells of the regeneration of a young pair who find happiness in a short fling of pleasure at one of the Florida beach resorts. The story was written by Dana Burnet, author of "The Shopworn Angel," one of Miss Carroll's former successes, and the film was directed by George Abbot. The cast includes the stage actor, Louis Calhern, as the other man.

"Rango," the jungle film by Ernest B. Schoedsack, will end its run tonight.

SEPARATE TAX RETURNS CAN BE ECONOMY

Husband and Wife Filing Apart Escape Larger Rates on Upper Brackets

This is the third of a series of articles on the most common problems of income tax.

When husbands and wives both have incomes it is sometimes possible for them to make savings in their income taxes by filing separate returns.

Married couples have the option of reporting their earnings either jointly or separately. Where taxable income exceeds $4,000 separate returns offer the advantage of reducing the amount subject to the higher tax rates. Where taxable income is under this amount separate returns offer no advantage.

In making separate returns, however, one cannot report income which belongs to the other. For example, a wife cannot report part of her husband's earnings as her own income in a separate return.

On the other hand, either may take the personal exemption or they may divide it between them in any proportion.

As an illustration, if a husband's income is $7,000 and his wife's $2,000, their joint income would be $9,000. After deducting personal exemption of $3,500 their taxable income in a joint return would be $5,500. They would pay 1.5 per cent of the first $4,000, or $60, and 3 per cent of the remaining $1,500, or $45, making a total tax of $105.

With separate returns the husband could take $3000 of the exemption, which would make his tax 1.5 per cent of $4,000, or $60. His wife could take the remaining $500 of exemption and would pay 1.5 per cent of $1,500, or $22.50. This would mage their total tax $82.50, a saving of $22.50.

Missionary Circles Hold Joint Meet

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folk See Noted Dancers

Society folks here in town, and there are quite a few right here, far from Florida's heralded sunshine, are finding that Lent isn't so very dull after all, what with splendid plays at the theaters, Kreutzberg and Georgi coming last night to Syria Mosque to bring new beauty into our lives, and "The Flying Dutchman" to be sung Saturday night at the Mosque.

The Mosque was filled to the topmost seat in the second balcony, with the orchestra circle and the first row or so of the balcony occupied by smartly gowned folks.

The boxes were filled, as usual. Mrs. H. H. McClintic was entertaining in her box with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Jr., among her guests. Mrs. McClintic wore black velvet and pearls and the junior Mrs. McClintic chose green and gold lame, fashioned with brief sleeves banded with chinchilla.

Entertain In Box

Charming Nancy Hamilton I saw chatting with friends in the corridor during intermission. She wore a water blue crepe gown. With her was Florence Carroll, in a black velvet wrap. Rosamound Fitch looked striking in a gown of cranberry red crepe fashioned with a square decolletage.

I had a glimpse of Mrs. Mortimer Miller, and of Genevieve Bell, who wore a black crepe gown and ermine wrap. Catherine Suydam chose a smart frock of turquoise crepe, made with long flowing sleeves banded in Kolinsky. Ellen McClay I saw as she was leaving with her mother, Mrs. Samuel McClay.

Black Smart

Louise Reed looked charming in a black velvet gown fashioned with a peplum and brief sleeves and her mother, Mrs. W. Edgar Reed, wore black velvet and rhinestones.

Jane Sloan chose a bay leaf green crepe gown, and Mrs. William A. Duckham chose eggshell satin. And I believe I saw the Thomas Fitzgeralds, and Mrs. Solon A. Person and Katherine McCloskey.

Plan Washington Quarters in 1932

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP.)—The classical features of George Washington probably will adorn next year's quarters. Congress passed a bill to place the first President on the coin in commemoration of his two hundredth anniversary in 1932. Secretary Mellon approved it and so, doubtless, will President Hoover.

What will go on the other side of the new two-bit piece is up to the Treasury.

KAMBACH TALKS AT BROOKLINE

It costs $28,500,000 a year to run the city of Pittsburgh, including the Department of Supplies, Councilman George J. Kambach last night told the Brookline Boosters' Association at a meeting in the German Beneficial Union Hall, Brookline boulevard, where he was the principal speaker.

He arrived just after he had made a motion in City Council aimed to suppress the investigation into the "irregularities" of the Department of Supplies, from which Director B. L. Succop was dismissed by Mayor Kline a week ago.

He spoke of the efficiency of the police department, including the proposed radio system of trapping criminals; unemployment and street paving, the latter a welcome topic to residents of Brookline.

But he omitted to mention the revelations of the alleged irregularities in Succop's office.

Health Club Hears Talk By Noah

Over-work, over-play, half-hour lunch periods, unseasonable dressing, swimming in winter with its consequent insufficient drying and change of temperature, weight-reducing and under-nourisnment were among the "predisposing factors" which Dr. Harry G. Noah named in his talk on tuberculosis before the Health Colony Club yesterday. The occasion was the club's annual luncheon in the Congress of Clubs, for which covers were laid for about 60. In the last 27 years the death rate from tuberculosis has been cut in half, but there are more than 1,000,000 cases in the United States today, Dr. Noah said.

His talk followed brief addresses by Dr. Thomas A. H. Stites, of Cresson Sanatorium, and Dr. L. N. Brown, of Woodville. The program also included a group of tenor solos pleasingly sung by Thomas Murdock, tenor, with Mrs. Murdock at the piano, and two readings by Miss Margaret Finley. For her first number Miss Finley gave a well-interpreted version of the first act from "Taming of the Shrew." Mrs. Robert L. Finlayson was chairman for the day.

The decorations, which were in Mrs. W. C. Bright's usual artistic style, consisted of a Dresden centerpiece of marguerites and long ends of tulle ribbon with smaller vases of flowers on the other tables. Mrs. E. D. Harshbarger, the president, had arranged the favors, which were dainty handkerchief nosegays filled with candy.

NEWEST ACCESSORY SETS ADD CHARM AND BEAUTY TO GOWNS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 4.—The set custom of making matched sets of dress accessories continues on its successful way. Many women have realized that even if their pet frock is not very distinguished either as to line, cut or fabric they may still win success by the addition of certain unique accessories. And that is why we have such clever sets just now. There are matching handbags and shoes, as well as shoes, bag, hankie and scarf, all carried out in the same material and with the same trimmings and motif.

AS THESE accessory sets are not inexpensive, many women are utilizing them for several frocks. It is possible to use the same flame colored accessories with either a black frock or a white one with equal success and splendid effect, while matched blue accessories are successful, too, with either black or white frocks. There are other women who prefer to make color the connecting link for their chain of accessories, matching not only shoes, hankies and bags, but gloves as well. These fascinating accessories offer a fertile field of ingenuity.

HEREWITH ARE SKETCHES of accessories by the very smart and noted Hellstern. The three upper sketches show a triangular scarf and a flat purse matching the evening slipp[illegible] in the right hand motif. The material is a hand printed crepe in dull light blue with a shaded design of small arrow-heads in deeper blue and gray. The slipper is piped with deep blue crepe and has a heel of the same. In the lower sketch is shown a pair of slippers also by Hellstern. They are of turquoise crepe de chine with a border and heel of matching satin piped with gold. A small turquoise buckle is placed at the side of the slipper.

Modern French Painting Shown in Exhibit

By PENELOPE REDD

Modern French painting is not at all formidable in the collection assembled by Fernand S. Akoun which is now on on view at Kaufmann's gallery.

Penelope Redd

Some 280 paintings, drawings and pastels representing 15 artists are shown without the accolade of prior art criticism.

The majority of the painters certainly the four or five most interesting ones are well under 30 years of age. They represent in the contemporary idiomatic technic of painting, modes traditionally French.

Boulier has about 25 pastels of the young, coquettish beauties whose seductive graces have been captured by every generation since Boucher. Robert is the descendant of the impressionists in mood. He chooses landscapes in strong sunlight. His modern view point is stressed in piquant color dissonances.

Assire has an effective study of "Calvi" in Corsica. The emphatic massive masonry of the old town faces the sea with Napoleonic boldness.

De Belay, whose works outnumber those of his colleagues, is exceeding prolific. He likes what he sees and because he sees a great many people and places, he seems to be working feverishly lest a single gregarious observation escape his pencil. His peasant studies, both drawings and paintings, have much to recommend them.

Joubin has a half-dozen canvases that indicate ability well beyond the average. About 24 years old, he is one the younglings of the "School of Paris"—all natural moderns.

The collection will only be on view until March 13.

Harald Kreuzberg and Yvonne Georgi, rarest artists among the world's dancers, entertained a large audience in Syria Mosque last night. Their art is certainly enhanced by a smaller auditorium; it is subtler than merely the pictures they create at every turn, and all present must have felt new sensations from this dancing, sensations that will require long analysis before finding their causes.

Mr. Lissfelt

Richard Wagner asked his singers to read scores and find therein every gesture necessary to convey his meaning to the listeners. This dancing pair must have heeded Wagner's words, for nowhere else does one find such faithfulness to pattern and mood in music as their dances portray. Their imagination for color, line and movement is limitless. Their fantasy for comedy and tragedy runs the gamut of emotions from tenderness to religious ecstacy.

For their color and the composition of their pictures they must have gone to Babylon and Egypt to Botticelli and Fragonard. But their steps follow so accurately the complicated voices within their music, that they put to shame players who are unable to find or reproduce those intricate lines. Their duo numbers are perfection of symmetry and grace. Those who want to know the meaning of modern music should see the satirical rural dance of Wilckens, the Gothic beauty in Ravel's Pavane on the Death of a Child. The purity of Mozart has never been more adequately expressed than in their translation of his variations to the dance.

Georgi's triumph was her Kassandra. Of Kreuzberg one speaks with awe, for vastly more than his body speaks with every gesture, but of this program we should like to remember the King's Dance.

Klaus Billig played flimsy accompaniments.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

NEW IDEA SAVES SILK HOSE

Expensive at best, silk hose and undergarments are made doubly so by improper washing. A fashion expert has found a new, simple way to correct this.

She adds a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Then she washes and rinses the articles as usual. The addition of Energine removes all the body excretions that soften and rot silk.

The results are amazing. Not only does this method give new cleanliness and freshness with original color revived but actually gives longer life to hose and undergarments. Try this new method. It's easier and quicker than just soap and water alone, means less rubbing and insures extra wear that will surprise you.

Energine is unexcelled, also, for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, gloves, shoes, etc. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

Gilbert, 636 Rimmon Street, Manchester, New Hampshire, writes: "We have been using Father John's Medicine, now for over twenty years, before that my own mother gave it to me when I was a little girl. Whenever we were rundown or had a cold it was always our remedy. Now I am the mother of seven children and I keep it at hand all the time because I think there is no better or safer remedy for all the family."

EINSTEIN JOVIAL IN BRIEF STOP HERE

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Two boys were arrested on the South Side not so long ago for shooting birds. John M. Phillips, formerly of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, asked the police to send the boys to him.

William Pfarr

In his home Mr. Phillips lectured the boys, lectured them good and hard," as they say. And then, to show the offenders the family could be critical on one hand and generous and hospitable on the other, Mrs. Phillips prepared a big feed for the two.

They stuffed themselves and went home satisfied that Mr. and Mrs. Phillips were all right and anything they said was good enough for them.

At 7 o'clock the next morning two other boys rapped and rapped at the Phillips doors until Mr. Phillips left his bed and answered.

"We," confessed the boys, with a hungry look, "shot some birds, too."

Sleuthing runs in the Egan family. Jim Egan for years he sergeant at Mt. Washington Police Station, helped preserve law and order. And his son, Bill Egan, once helped to defeat once of those crime waves.

Bill was doing street duty, in civilian clothes, in the East End. Criminals were running wild and the papers and people were "panning" the police.

At an intersection Bill noted an auto carrying five men whom he noted as auto thieves sorely wanted by the police.

As the traffic light changed, the car started. Bill tossed his hat away, jumped on the running board and pleaded, "Give me a lift, boys. I just pulled a job and the bulls are after me.

Bill instructed them to speed along Frankstown avenue, where he explained, truthfully enough, he had a hangout. As they neared the police station Egan drew his revolver, ordered the men to stop and yelled for the police. The five young men are still behind the bars.

A friend approached Col. Charlie Dunn, the man-about-town, a few days ago.

"Charlie," asked the friend, "do you have any idea where a fella could borrow a thousand dollars?"

"A thousand dollars!" the Colonel exclaimed. "Why, you couldn't get a thousand at Mattewan these days."

We feel the solemn duty to warn shopkeepers of a new racket. The case we heard of had to do with two girls who bought $1,000 worth of furniture on time payments. For three months they paid regularly $60 monthly. The fourth month they gave a personal check for $120 and asked $60 back in cash. On successive months they did the same, and each time the checks were cashed. They were good checks.

Then the girls stopped paying the monthly bill. And the shopkeeper demanded the $500 balance. The girls showed him cancelled checks totalling $1,000 and they won the suit in court—all because the store had not itemized on the checks [illegible] much had been paid on account and how much had been given the customers in cash.

ART PRIZE WON BY PITTSBURGH GIRL STUDENT

Mrs. Caleb Hornbostel Given French School's Coveted Honor on Difficult Work

By winning the coveted Lamer prize awarded by the Ecole des Beaux Arts de Paris, Mrs. Caleb Hornbostel, of Pittsburgh, and graduate of Carnegie Institute of Technology, today enjoys the distinction of being the first American woman to achieve that honor.

With her husband, also a graduate of Tech, and son of Henry Hornbostel, Pittsburgh architect, she is a student in the Paris school.

She was one of a class of 12 advaced students selected to take part in the final competition, the selection being made on the basis of the ability shown in sketches, the models in clay prepared as a preliminary to the modeling of the finished figure.

Mrs. Hornbostel's sculptured figure representing "Joy" is regarded by artists as one of the most difficult emotions to portray.

Two years ago Mrs. Hornbostel took second place in the competitive modeling in which students of sculpture compete for admission to the school.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 4.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Paul Y. Anderson, who covers Washington for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, is one of the keenest and most fearless political writers in Washington. He is the young fellow that during a Senate investigation suggested one question to the committee and it unearthed oil from one end of Pennsylvania avenue to the other. Well, Paul paid me a compliment a day or so ago that I am really proud of. It was in regard to the Republican fear of an increased income tax. Here it is: "Thank the Lord after all these years you have finally said something true. Keep on another 10 years and you may say something funny."

Pershing Tells Of 28th Division Halting Germans

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER LII.

A number of our divisions were quite prepared to engage in any contemplated offensive, and their location at the moment lent hope for the early formation of one and probably two entire corps of Americans.

Liggett's 1st Corps had taken its place in line July 4, with the 2d Division (Harbord), relieved on the 10th by the 26th (Edwards), and a French division under its direction.

The corps staff had been shaken down to the routine of its work and had been in every respect an efficient group, performing its functions with the confidence and precision worthy of the more experienced staffs of the Allied armies.

During an inspection trip July 12, to the headquarters of the 1st Corps, I had lunch with Gen. Harbord at Nanteuil-sur-Marne, where his division was resting. He told of a marine in his division who had captured 75 German prisoners singlehanded.

Gen. Pershing

I returned to Paris that day. My diary notes the call of Miss Anne Morgan and Mrs. Dyke, who came to talk of their work in the devastated regions.

A further entry notes that one of our intelligence officers had obtained Kerensky's views on the Russian situation, which was still regarded by the Allies with much uncertainty.

As we have seen, they had come to regard Russia as a possible recruiting ground for the German armies, and various suggestions of ways and means to counteract German influence had been made.

Apropos the apprehensions of the Allies, it was not without interest to get the views of Kerensky, who, in command of the Russian armies, had at one time met considerable temporary success in attempting to stem the tide of revolution.

The intelligence officer, who had known Kerensky, met him in Paris, and was told that Trotzky desired the intervention of American troops in Russia, to be landed in Vladivostok. Kerensky said Trotzky was personally opposed to Allies intervention, and that if the Japanese participated it would meet with opposition, unless they should be preceded by American troops.

If Americans were accompanied by British and French troops, he said, both Lenin and Trotzky would inform Russian peasants that Allied forces had landed to deprive them of their property and liberty. Kerensky characterized Lenin and Trotzky as being in the pay of Germans, and said that the real governor of Russia was the German Ambassador.

Troops Sent to Russia

Kerensky advised propaganda in favor of American aid, and said all Cossacks and 100,000 Czecho-Slovaks would join them because the Russians believed in the disinterested motives of Americans in Europe. He suggested, however, that if we should intervene the entry should be by way of Archangel.

The question of sending troops to Russia was also presented from another source. When our ambassador to Russia, David R. Francis, was in Paris in June, 1918, he strongly advocated our intervention, and thought 100,000 men would save the nation.

Mr. Francis

He urged me to recommend it, but I was opposed to the principle to any undertaking that would deplete our strength in France, and thought such a diversion would lead only to complications and would not affect that final result.

It was my belief that our task clearly lay on the Western Front, and that we should have all we could to do to beat the enemy there. But, as mentioned later, allied forces were sent both to Archangel and Vladivostok.

There was too much of a tendency by the allied governments to expeditions here and there in pursuit of political aims.

French Enjoy Holiday

They were prone to lose sight of the fundamental fact that the real objective was the German army. Once that was beaten, the

SCHOOL BOARD RUMPUS STIRS BELLEVUE

Woman Member Quits After Serving Ten Years; State Survey Ignored

Majority members of the Bellevue school board had little to say, today, regarding the resignation of Mrs. Nellie E. Robertson, after 10 years' service, because of the board's policy of erecting a new senior instead of a junior high school.

Mrs. Robertson declared she would not "share the odium" which would result from ignoring recommendations of the State Department of Public Instruction after a thorough survey.

IGNORE SURVEY

Mrs. Belle M. Johnston, described by Mrs. Robertson as standing with her against the five men members of the board, said she favored a junior high school and that the board should abide by the opinion of state experts who had made the survey.

The survey, made in 1929, recommended that a new junior high school be built to take care of seventh, eighth and ninth grades. The present high school could be utilized for the tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades, making the senior high school a three-year course.

Statements by the board members follow:

Mrs. Johnston—Our present high school is antiquated. After having visited junior high schools in other cities I am heartily in favor of one for Bellevue. I think that when a survey is made by state experts we should abide by their opinions. I feel very sorry that Mrs. Robertson has resigned at this time.

S. Frank McKee, president—I have no views to express. Mrs. Robertson is a very fine lady. Her opinions are worthy of careful consideration. However, the majority of the school board are not in accord with her views. The whole thing is in tentative form.

H. A. Pickering, vice president—You will have to see Mr. McKee. I would rather not talk.

NOTHING TO SAY

Homer J. Freese—I haven't anything to do with it. I would rather not be quoted as I don't know what the other members are saying.

James W. Graham, secretary—She resigned and that is all I will say. You will have to get your information elsewhere.

R. D. Jenkinson—I haven't anything to say. You ought to call Mr. McKee.

JUDGE SCORES JURY VERDICT

Judge George V. Moore, displeased with a jury's verdict in Criminal Court, declared:

"I do not intend to harp on the finding of the jury, but we think there was a miscarriage of justice in this case. I had intended to send these men to jail because they are police officers. There is too much suspicion of grafting, and faith in law enforcement is reduced by this suspicion."

Joseph Murray, a constable, of Wall, has been found not guilty of extortion and bribery, after Joseph Torok, of Chalfont, a special policeman for East McKeesport, a co-defendant, had pleaded guilty and turned state's evidence. Torok said he accompanied Murray on a raid on the home of John Evanovich, of Wall, where they searched for liquor without a warrant. He said he was given $20 by the wife of Evanovich, who promised $80 more to fixe the case.

Murray made a sweeping denial, saying he was armed with a search warrant, but, finding no liquor, made no arrests. The jury found him not guilty.

Judge Moore sentenced Torok to 60 days in jail, but suspended sentence because of the acquittal of Murray.

BRIDGE LIGHTS TO BE CHANGED

County Commissioners have authorized the installation of 1,000-watt lamps for "navigation lights" on the West End-North Side Bridge at an additional cost of $1,304.

The commissioners were advised yesterday by the Department of Public Works that the U. S. Lighthouse Service criticized the lights for the bridge roadway as being so bright that they made less visible the navigation lights under the bridge floor.

U. S. authorities asked the county to attach screens to the bridge roadway lights. County Bridge Engineer V. R. Covell said such an arrangement would be unsightly and recommended 1,000-watt lamps for the navigation lights.

LAUDS U. S., NEW VISIT PLANNED

Dr. A. L. Lewin, Old Friend, Heads Delegation Greeting Scientist at P.R.R. Station

Prof. Albert Einstein, father of the theory of relativity, and the world's foremost physicist, chuckled as he surveyed the circle of eager faces that greeted him as he stepped from his private car in the Pennsylvania Station last night.

Waving his hand in friendly greeting he exclaimed in mixed English and German:

"Ach! Kinderspiel! Child's play! Yes. Certainly I will greet them. It is good. We shall have a little fun, children! Nicht wahr?"

GREETS OLD FRIEND

Eagerly he grasped the hand of a friend Dr. A. L. Lewin, member of the Pittsburgh Board of Education. The professor was an obscure teacher in a Berlin technical school when Dr. Lewin was a student there years ago.

The famous scientist wrapped his grey gaberdine coat closer about him. From the barrage of questions he caught up one, repeated it.

"America? Ach! A wonderful country! Pasadena, Los Angeles, Hollywood, the moving pictures, the actors, everybody, every place, wonderful! And at Mt. Wilson, California, you have the best astronomical observatory in the world!"

AMUSED AT CONTRADICTION

Told that Father Callahan, head of Duquesne University, had written a thesis to disprove his relativity theory, the Herr Professor chuckled.

"So? Can it be he has already done what cannot be done? Well, well!"

He motioned his wife to join him in his mirth.

The professor said he planned to return to America next year. He said his trip had been profitable, from a scientific standpoint.

Zionists and members of the Jewish Hadassah were among the three-score friends that came to welcome Einstein. The Hadassah president, Mrs. I. H. Levin, was there together with Mrs. Samuel Goldstock and other members. Emil Steinbach, honorary president, Pittsburgh Zionists, was spokesman and interpreter. Other Zionists present were Region President for Western Pennsylvania, Dr. M. B. Lichtenstein, and the Pittsburgh district head, S. L. Fuss.

TALKS WITH BOY

Einstein talked for a moment with a boy, about relativity and other things. The lad, Daniel Levin, of 425 Hastings street, son of Mrs. Levin, the Hadassah president, spoke with the professor in German.

Einstein, his wife, Frau Elsa, and several attendants, arrived in a private car, en route to New York, from the Pacific Coast. He gave a personal example of his relativity theory, remaining in Pittsburgh exactly 25 minutes, in direct relation to the time his train stopped here.

Prof. Einstein and his wife were still smiling as the train pulled out. The great man waved his hand. Both called again and again:

"Auf Wiedersehn, gute freund. Auf Wiedersehn, Pittsburgh. Auf Wiedersehn."

CITY TREASURY AIDE HELD IN TAX-PAYMENT FRAUD

CLERK BLAMED FOR FORGED RECEIPTS

Gambled With Stolen $3,000, Says Alleged Confession; Exposed by 'Delinquents'

Charles Solomon, 28, of 1621 Bedford avenue, waived hearing in Central Police Court today on charges of forgery and fraudulent conversion of $3,000 from the city treasurer's office, where he was employed as an assistant cashier.

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg held him for court and allowed him liberty on $5,000 bail.

Solomon was arrested by city detectives yesterday when an investigation disclosed he had converted to his own use $3,000 in the last two months, according to City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley. The arrest and alleged confession of Solomon that he had lost the money gambling came 24 hours after the treasurer's complaints.

The investigation began when a half dozen property owners, whose names appeared in the delinquent tax list Saturday, protested their taxes had been paid. It was then disclosed, according to the report to police, that the taxpayers had given the money to Solomon, who forged another employe's name to the receipts.

Solomon, meeting friends waiting in line to pay taxes, volunteered to relieve them of the wait and took their money, it is charged.

Solomon, employed at the treasurer's office since last May, is under $5,000 surety bond.

Informations will probably be made against him by his victims, it was said.

THIEF BARRED FROM ARMY

United States recruiting offices in Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia have been notified to refuse enlistment to an 18-year-old Somerset (Pa.) youth convicted in that town recently and given his choice, it is said, of joining the Army or going to jail. Maj. Julius Lindenstruth, in charge of recruiting here, said today.

Army leaders resented the alleged action of the Somerset judge in giving the youth, convicted of stealing an automobile, the option of Army or jail life, Maj. Lindenstruth said.

"The Army is no haven for men of questionable character, and recruiting standards are higher now than at any time in the past."

Jury Awards $8,500 Damages in Suit

Edward A. Sweeney, of North Side, was awarded a verdict of $8,500 damages for personal injuries by a jury in Common Pleas Court in his suit against the Pittsburgh Railways Company. He testified he suffered concussion of the brain and a spinal injury when he boarded a car on Federal street, near North avenue, October 17, 1927, and the motorman, dashing from the car to the street, brushed against him and knocked him from the step.

Woman Files Suit To Annul Marriage

Mrs. Ruth Alice Wright, 7701 Stanton avenue, Swissvale, asked an annulment of her marriage to Edward E. Wright, 3406 Lisonier street, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court. They were married in Cleveland, May 27, 1926, at which time, she alleges, Wright was married to Mrs. Ruth Harvey Wright. Mrs. Wright, the petitioner, averred she left him when she learned of his previous marriage.

"Stabilization of Employment" will be the subject of an address by Mrs. Lillian Gilbreth, director of the women's division of President Hoover's emergency committee for unemployment, at a meeting of the research committee for retail training, University of Pittsburgh, in Kaufmann's at 3 p. m. Mrs. Gilbreth, mother of 11 children, is president of an engineering company and the holder of a doctor degree of philosophy.

OWNERS ACCEPT ASSESSMENTS

Property owners of Duquesne and Clairton are apparently satisfied with the property assessments made there by the Board of Tax Revision, for the board did not hear one appeal yesterday. Several adjustments, however, were made without that formality.

It was stated by members of the board that property owners generally are making few complaints for the reason that valuations were not raised much in any section of the county. It was held that conditions did not warrant boosting valuations at this time.

While no appeals will be heard today, the board will begin hearings tomorrow in the City of Pittsburgh. Residents of the First, Third, Fifth and Twenty-first wards who desire to register protests will be given a hearing. On Friday the board will sit to hear appeals of property owners in the Sixth, Seventh and Ninth wards of this city.

Penn. Mother's Lucky Find

WHEN we find that some slight adjustment makes a marvelous improvement in a child we wonder why we hadn't thought before to give the child this help.

A good example is the experience of Mrs. J. B. Tull, 1615 So. Dover Street, Philadelphia. She says: "My little girl was doing fairly well but I noticed she didn't eat like she should and didn't seem to have much energy.

"I wanted to do something for her, and having used California Fig Syrup for myself before, felt sure it would help her. So much I wonder why I hadn't thought of it before. I hope it relieves her sleeplessness, gives her a good appetite and regularity of energy."

To build up a child's appetite, increase energy and strength, assist digestion and assimilation, there's nothing more effective than pure vegetable California Fig Syrup. Doctors advise its use to open the bowels during colds, and children's diseases or whenever bad breath, coated tongue, headaches, listlessness, etc., warn of constipation.

Everywhere, dealers have the name California Syrup. Ask for that when you buy. Look for that when you buy.

Laughlin, vice dean of the law school, acting as presiding judge. The trial will be held in the assignment room, seventh floor of the City-County Building at 8 o'clock.

McKeesport Home Burns During Family's Absence; 'Gas' Blazes After Crash

Fire early today caused damage estimated by police at $10,000 to the home of Thomas Jordan, 610 Park street, McKeesport. Members of the family were visiting the home of a relative who died yesterday when flames were discovered at 2:25 a. m., police were told. The blaze was caused by crossed wires, according to Fire Capt. George Trautman.

Fire caused $6,000 damage to a three-story brick building in 630 Fifth avenue, McKeesport, yesterday. The blaze was discovered in the third floor apartment of Mrs. Anna Mercis. The second floor apartment of R. W. Causey and the poolroom conducted on the first floor by Mark Kocar were damaged by smoke and water.

Damage estimated at $200 resulted when an automobile backed against a gasoline pump at a Gulf Refining Company gasoline station, Forbes street and Murray avenue, early today. Firemen extinguished a small blaze which started immediately after the crash.

BEAUTIFUL NEW ENRICHMENTS AND REFINEMENTS in the LA SALLE V·8
at the same moderate price

With notable refinements in body interiors and appointments—and with its exterior appearance smartened and enhanced by new hood ports and attractive new colors—today's La Salle V-8 now offers, in even greater measure, those fine-car characteristics which have made it so popular among the select motorists of the world.

Upholsteries are notably finer, as to both quality and appearance. Cushions and seat backs are smooth-trimmed and tailored with piping at the edges. Window mouldings and smoking and vanity sets are finer and more attractive. In fact, the interior ensemble suggests the richness of a custom creation.

La Salle is the first of the Cadillac-built motor cars to be made available to buyers in the medium-price field. Priced as low as $2195, f. o. b. Detroit, La Salle is actually as easy to own—especially when the purchaser takes advantage of the liberal G. M. A. C. payment plan—as a lesser automobile. And because it is driven far longer than the average car, it is far more economical over the years of ownership.

May We Send a La Salle to Your Home?

The engineering discoveries made in developing the Cadillac V-12 and V-16 have been applied to all Cadillac-La Salle power plants. As a result, La Salle performance is now so exceptional that only a demonstration can reveal the car's full capabilities. Consequently, we should like to place a La Salle at your disposal for an extended trial drive. Simply telephone your interest, and a La Salle will be sent to your door.

Singers for the German Opera Company's at Syria Mosque Saturday.

RARE EFFECTS IN OPERA HERE

One of the most difficult operas in the entire repertoire to stage is Wagner's "Der Fliegende Hollaender." Operatic impressarios have long regarded it as a bugbear, entirely impossible to produce on the stage of the ordinary theater. Hence the difficulties which the German Grand Opera Company has overcome in presenting this work to the music public of Pittsburgh, at Syria Mosque, Saturday evening, March 7th.

For 22 years before the present season, the Metropolitan Opera Company avoided any attempt to stage "The Flying Dutchman." The Chicago company has never produced it. The German Grand Opera Company is the first major organization able to present this exacting work on the road. Its presentation in Pittsburgh will be an achievement in operatic history.

There is the first act and its moving ship, the second act interior and the illusion of a picture of the lost Dutchman suddenly coming to life. There is the last act spectable of the blood red ship, scudding before an eerie wind, suddenly dissolving in the mist and spray, shouldered into eternity by one gigantic, angry wave.

FLIVVER PLANE MAKES FLYING SIMPLE

'Junior' Ship Demonstrated Here, Lands Four Times on Hilltops of County

Hedge-hopping is child's play in the new air flivver being demonstrated here.

Four landings were made yesterday on hilltop knolls in the vicinity of Bettis and County airports. Capt. Hal R. Bazley, Bettis manager, made the demonstration with a passenger.

The flying baby, a product of Curtis-Wright, has been aptly named Junior. Powered with a 43.5 horsepower radial air-cooled motor mounted on the single wing above the cockpit, the new ship is a pusher monoplane type. It is designed for two occupants with dual controls and comes equipped with necessary instruments, including air-speed indicator, tachometer and altimeter in addition to the usual engine instruments.

The baby monoplane takes off in 100 to 150 feet; climbs at the rate of 600 feet a minute and lands at 30 miles an hour. Its cruising speed is 70 miles an hour and at full throttle sends it to 80 miles an hour. Gasoline consumption is lower than most automobiles, figured at an average of 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

HOUSTON'S NEW CHARGE HIT IN COUNCIL

Rail Chief Also Contradicts Statement; Public Utility Complications Blamed

Improvements here by the Pennsylvania Railroad costing more than $40,000,000 have not been held up in the least by the Kline administration, City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt told City Council yesterday.

Public utilities organizations' delay in reaching agreements with the railroad are responsible, Waldschmidt asserted.

Facilities of these utilities organizations, including traction companies and electric light, water and gas interests, in the neighborhood of the station improvements downtown are affected.

Charges that the railroad was holding up its construction program were made by John D. Houston, president of the James W. Houston Company, several days ago. He said he had information to prove the railroad was waiting for the Kline administration to be deposed.

The charges were denied by John F. Deasy, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Houston made accusations against Bertram L. Succop, director of the City Department of Supplies, which resulted in his dismissal by the Mayor.

TELL IT TO SALLY

Sometimes Husbands Need Dose of Own Medicine

Kidding husbands — they're cluttering up the columns these days. Riette's husband kidded all the girls and ogled every pretty ankle that tripped down the street. When Riette called him for it, he was surprised and hurt, and insisted she was "just jealous." Lorraine's Big Boy is built on the same pattern.

"I certainly sympathize with Riette," she cries, between rage and despair, "because I have a husband just like she has, only worse. He not only kids every woman he meets but each evening I have to listen to a long account of all the good-looking girls he has seen or talked to during the day, and how crazy they all are over him — especially the ones who are of a type opposite to mine.

"He even compares their hair, their teeth, and their features, with mine, and tells me how much better looking they are. Then, when he is all finished, he tells me how much he loves me!

Says She's Jealous

"I have only been married five months, but I've only counted one day that he hasn't raved over the girls. It is so humiliating! And several of my girl friends have told me how sorry they were for me—and I hate pity! Outside of all this, he is the most wonderful husband in all the world—but I can't stand this much longer. I try to be happy when he comes home at night, but as soon as he gets in he starts his raving and knocks all the happiness out of me. I just don't understand him at all!

"Last night was the first time I've ever protested, and he said I was jealous, and that it tickled him to be able to get my goat! Can you tie that?

"He didn't understand — or maybe I don't understand — I don't know. All I know is that some day, if this keeps up, I'll just walk out and never, never come back, because it is driving me insane. And on top of it all, if I so much as smile at some fellow I know, or remark on his appearance, Joe goes up in the air. I don't know what to do. I know I can't go on like this. I can't stand it. I don't believe he really means the things he says or does. But what ails him? What in heck is he trying to do, anyway? I love him so much that I wouldn't be happy without him, but living this way is just plain hell."

Trying for Success

What is he trying to do, honey? Well, surprising as it may seem, he actually is trying to make a big success of his marriage! Yes, I know he's going at it all wrong, and making a sap out of himself, but he doesn't realize that.

Really, underneath all his foolishness, he is dreadfully anxious . . . just as anxious as you are . . . to make your marriage a solid going concern. But he is also dreadfully unsure of himself . . . of his ability to hold your admiration and your love.

So he's trying desperately, by raving about all the pretty ladies who are crazy about him, to impress you with what a really big time charmer he is . . . and he doubtless imagines you ought to feel flattered at having copped off a guy so many other giddy beauties are rarin' to get. His intentions are good, but his technique is a total loss, and it's up to you, if you want to make your marriage the fine comradeship it should be, to make him see it.

Sit down some evening and say, "Listen, big boy, you're not impressing me by all this hooey, or making me love you. I love you already, and I'll keep on loving you if you'll grow up and quit this foolishness, but, if you don't, I won't be able to. So let's cut it all out and see just how fair we can be to each other. And just what a fine, happy thing we can make of this marriage of ours. You don't need to make such terrible efforts to show me how attractive you are. I know already, and I'm for you 100 per cent if you'll be your age and give me a chance!"

Then if he slips again, which he probably will, for habits can't change in a minute . . . dust off your sense of humor, and try a few doses of Estelle's recipe. It has worked for her, and the chances are it'll work for you, if you'll use it with judgment.

One Husband Cured

"Here's my advice to Riette," says she. "It tickled my husband, too, to do a lot of fussing about other girls, and get me all hot and bothered. Objections wouldn't stop him. So I began kidding him about it. I even pointed out pretty girls for him to admire, and I'd say, 'Gee, daddy, how'd you like to trade me off for her?'

"Or, when he began raving about someone, 'Well, Big Boy, if you ever find anyone you love better than you do me, just say so, and I'll step out and give you your freedom!' That got him wild, and he'd say he'd rather anything would happen than to have me leave him. I'd notice nice looking men, too, and rave about them a little and, when he got mad and asked if I'd like to trade him off, I just gave him a hearty laugh! And he didn't know what to think.

"My pet recipe is to rave about him sometimes, and tell him what a great guy he is and how glad I am that I have him. But not too much, or he's apt to get too sure of himself. I make him work to keep me. Keep him guessing. If you'll do the same, he'll stick to you like fly paper, and you couldn't shake him if you wanted to!"

How about it, stranger?

Do you agree with Estelle?

Modesty and Good Character Appeal to Best in Men, Fay King Tells Girls

By FAY KING

Every girl hopes to meet a wonderful man whom she will adore and who will adore her.

The next important step is to make the proper impression when she does meet him.

No matter what her place in life she can do this with neatness, modesty and charm.

She should never belittle, criticise or speak disrespectfully of her home or parents. Even if they are unreasonably strict, he will admire her more for being obedient and devoted to them.

Men dislike defiance in women. Though he may not show it, it shocks his inborn admiration for gentle sympathy and understanding he always associates with her.

Modesty and good character will ever appeal to the best in man. Less will only win him for the moment!

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge, With Happy Heart, Awaits the Zero Hour.

I puzzled over Dicky's promise all the rest of the afternoon, when I was not too busy to think of anything save the task of decorating the dining room of the hotel for Mary's party. He had said that he knew of a way to disabuse Philip Veritzen's mind of the notion that I preferred his flowers to Dicky's, because I chose to wear them, but I could not see how he would manage it without enraging my employer.

So happy was I, however, over the outcome of my talk with Dicky, that the question of Mr. Veritzen's possible anger would not have troubled me at all, if the thought of its possible reaction against Noel and Mary had not been persisted. I had expected a most unhappy quarter of an hour with my husband, with the possibility of having to anger my employer by refusing the corsage of flowers which he was offering to me as well to all the women guests at Mary's party. Dicky had proved unusually tractable, and though I shrewdly suspected that part of his complaisance was because of Edith's outre action, yet I was so relieved at his willingness to have me wear Mr. Veritzen's flowers that I had no desire to cavil at anything.

Surprisingly, Dicky made no comment upon the lavishness of the flowers my employer had sent for the decoration of the improvised ballroom, and, throwing himself into the spirit of the thing as if he had planned it from the first, he took charge of the florist's man who had brought the palms and potted plants which I had ordered, while I arranged clusters of cut flowers in the different vases. I set aside my own plans, and scrupulously deferred to the frequent hints Dicky gave me as he wandered around the room, planning every detail of decoration with the zest which he brings to every task that appeals to the artistic side of his nature.

At last everything was finished and Purnell had removed every bit of the debris, and was lightly brushing the floors. There was missing only the dinner decoration from the back room, where we were to have dinner served, separated from the large hotel dining room by tall screens, and we could see for ourselves just how charming that room would look. But, in spite of the many vases of flowers upon the tall brackets, it was hard to visualize the other, now filled with tables, as a ballroom. Purnell finished his sweeping and came up to us, voicing the thought present in both our minds.

"It's shoh goin' to take some tall hustlin' to git this hyah room cleared out and the floors waxed by the time yoh folks all git back from the show," he said with a dubious shake of the head.

"Purnell," Mr. Seibel said softly, from the doorway behind him, and the darky started violently.

"If Mr. and Mrs. Graham can spare you, will you come here a minute?" I nodded acquiescence, and Purnell walked laggingly over to his employer, listened to a few soft words which we could not hear, and the tenor of which we could not glean from Mr. Seibel's poker face. But it was a crestfallen Purnell who returned and, without further comment upon the magnitude of the task before us, asked what I wished him to do next.

"Get your supper," I told him, promptly, "then come back here and stay, so if anyone comes here and asks for me, you can bring the message to me at the apartment."

I was conscious that Dicky had shot a keen glance at me, but I pretended not to notice. I was most anxious that he have no further cause for irritation upon Philip Veritzen's account, and it was a heedless thing for me to have given the instruction to Purnell in his hearing. Mine is unfortunately a one-track mind, however, and fresh within it was the remembrance that I had promised Mr. Veritzen to bring Mary down to see the dinner decoration which he had planned as a surprise for me. I knew, however, that it was of no use for me to bring in Mary's name, if I had to explain my errand to Dicky. He already had expressed his skepticism that any part of Mr. Veritzen's lavishness was for Mary, and deep in my heart I knew that he was right.

To my great relief he made no comment upon my instructions to Purnell, and we went up amicably together to our own apartment, where Dicky looked at his watch and yawned.

"Me, I've got time for at least thirty-seven and a half winks," he said, "leaving me time to shave 'n' everything. I'd advise you to snatch some, too."

"Perhaps I will," I said, knowing that was the quickest way to forestall a discussion. But when he had gone into his own room and shut the door upon my promise to call him, I went to Mary's room, expecting to find her asleep. But, instead, I found her rushing around the room, with her evening things spread out upon the bed.

"Oh, Auntie Madge!" she said, "I'm so afraid we'll be late. Oh, I don't believe I ever was so happy in all my life."

Children are the victims of common ailments, many of which are preventable. The contagious diseases of childhood are transmitted from one child to another. This can be avoided by proper care and much unnecessary suffering prevented. Simple hygienic rules taught during childhood greatly influence the future health of the individual. It is believed by most authorities that the ideal place for this instruction is in the school.

I believe this an excellent plan, but such teaching should not end there. It should be practiced, emphasized and repeated at home. Home teaching is sometimes more convincing than the instruction received at school. Where the home environment is not as ideal as it should be, the instruction at school is vitally essential.

Children should be taught at an early age the value and use of the handkerchief. They should be instructed how to protect the nose and mouth when coughing or sneezing and given the reasons why.

They should be warned against the common habit of placing fingers and pencils in the mouth. Every child should be carefully instructed in the necessity of washing the hands with soap and water frequently during the day. This habit should be acquired as soon as possible. Everybody, young and old, should remember the necessity of having clean hands before eating.

Brushing the teeth upon arising and retiring should be made a part of the daily routine of every child. This responsibility should begin at as early an age as possible.

To insure health among our young it is advisable that they be examined periodically. Strict attention must be given to posture. Ear, eye, nose, throat, dental and other possible defects should be discovered as soon as possible. When these are corrected in early life, much undue and unnecessary suffering is escaped in later life.

These are mere hints. But I do want you to know that the welfare of the child and the state of adult health are founded on the health practices of youth.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Far as coiffures are concerned the sisterhood is pretty much up in the air. Short bobs are still hanging on, and girls with long bobs are swirling theirs across the back of the head or adding pendant curls. The only real change is the fluffy beau catcher placed where it will do the most good which may be in front of the ear, behind it, or snuggled up some place on the forehead. Hats that are gradually receding toward the nape of the neck offer opportunities for a generous display of dippy forelocks.

No greater compliment can be paid a woman than to be told that she is sweet. There are girls who are sweet, girls who are sour, girls who are neither sweet nor sour. The first carry away all the honors at the party, the second are avoided, the third class gets by or sits on the sidelines. If a girl is sweet it doesn't matter much if her nose is a bit snubby. Her eyes have a twinkle, her lips are smiling, her hand clasp is warm, her company is sought. One's beauty prayer should be "Please help me to keep sweet."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Time and Place of Bread and Butter Plates.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to use bread and butter knives and plates at a luncheon? ANNETTE.

Yes. Bread and butter plates, and individual butter knives are placed for informal dinners, for luncheons, and for breakfasts. And we need them very much at our luncheon tables . . . for the roll or bread, for the butter, and for any accessories such as celery, radishes, olives and so forth.

For Partaking of Soup.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When soup or broth is served in cups, with two handles, is it sipped or should a spoon be used? M. S.

We use the bouillon spoon or the cream soup spoon to sip the first few mouthfuls conveniently to test the heat of the soup, and then we may, if we wish, drink the rest of the soup from the cup, as we would tea.

Permissible in Emergencies Only.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please tell me the correct way to eat jam and preserves when served with muffins or biscuits? Often a small dish of jam is served with the main course, and I am in some doubt whether one should use a fork, knife or spoon?

2. Is it correct to cut a waffle with a knife, or should it be eaten with a fork?

3. Will you please tell me if it is incorrect, when eating in a public place—restaurant, and so forth, to wipe off the silver before using? A. L. T.

1. Usually we find it more convenient if the jam or preserve is evidently meant for the biscuit or muffin, to take a small service of the jam to the bread and butter plate, and then, with the individual butter knife, put a little of the jam on the mouthful of the biscuit that we have broken off. But, if the preserve is apparently meant as an accompaniment of the main course itself (such as mint jelly with lamb), then we usually serve the portion of the jelly directly to the dinner plate.

2. It is more convenient, I think, to use both the knife and fork when we are eating waffles. But, if we prefer to use only the fork, this is correct.

3. This is a moot question. I should like to say that we never should do this, but circumstances don't always make this advice wise! Few gestures look more "thick" than this habit of wiping off restaurant silver, thereby suggesting that it is always necessary. The wise thing is not to do it unless we feel that it is evident that it must be done.

Serving the Family At Dinner.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please give the proper order to serve the members of a family at the dinner table? There are several small children, the parents, grandparents and a guest. A READER.

The guest would—I am sure all of the members of the family would agree—be served first. Then the grandmother, the grandfather, the children, and next probably, the mother, if she assists in the serving.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, March 5

The planetary influences for this day point to the personal interests as being uppermost among the activities. There may be journeys of pleasure or changes in the environment, possibly of an unforeseen nature or having sensational or unorthodox angles. In any event matters will be intriguing and of peculiar interest, with the energies and faculties keen. It may be wise to be on guard against compromising letters or writings.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by an eventful and intriguing year, with many subtle influences at work. The party private interests may be emphasized, conducing to sudden change in the invironment and in relations, business and personal.

A child born on this day should be energetic, talented, popular and of many social graces and accomplishments. It may develop an unusual gift in art or music.

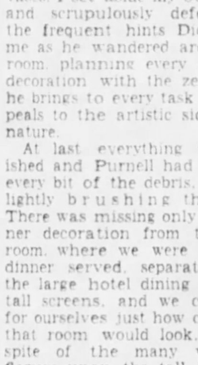
Household Hints

Aluminum dishes can be cleaned on the inside by boiling tomato skins and bits of the discarded vegetables in them, or water containing a little vinegar.

Paste a narrow strip of adhesive tape across the inside top edge of slipper buckles and save your silk stockings from being pulled and torn on the rough edges of the buckles.

Unless your party is a very large one and a very formal one, do not use demi-tasse cups for your coffee. Almost everyone likes a large cup of coffee after a big dinner, and that tiny cup is just an irritation.

To keep linen from turning yellow when putting it away, wrap it in blue paper or part of a worn out sheet or pillow case that has been dipped in very strong bluing water. Or, instead of wrapping it, enamel inside of the closet blue.



Too much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine, prescribed by doctors for conditions due to excess acid. It is always a liquid; it cannot be made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips' and the word genuine in red.

PHONE CALL BROUGHT QUICK COUGH RELIEF

CARMEN FISCHER

Friends' suggestion proved wise

Several years ago, when little Carmen Fischer of 284 Grider St., Buffalo, N. Y., was visiting friends with her mother, they noticed her coughing. They suggested that she try REM, for they had found it very good. "So I phoned up to the Creville Pharmacy on Genesee St.," says Mrs. Fischer, "and they sent us a bottle of REM right away. I was very much pleased with the quick way REM broke up Carmen's cough. After the first few doses, she didn't cough nearly as much and it was a whole lot looser. I found REM just as good as my friends said it was and Carmen is just crazy about it." One reason for REM's remarkable effectiveness is the special ingredient it contains that isn't found in ordinary cough syrups. Harmless--pleasant--effective--what more could you ask!

REM's easy to take, too. Children and parents can both appreciate that!

FORD CITY FIVE MAKES BID

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Buc Head Takes Stand. Holdout Turned Down. 1902 Team Rated Best.

Griff Against New Ball. Another Idea Offered. Betting Shift Ignored.

SAYS CLUB WON'T RAISE FRENCH OFFER

JUST HOW LONG the holdout of Larry French is going to continue, or whether he ever pitches another game for the Pittsburgh club, is entirely up to French himself, according to word that comes from Pirate headquarters. President Barney Dreyfuss has taken the stand that Larry must stay out until he decides of his own accord to come in. No attempt will be made to placate him or to coax him to return to the Buccaneer fold, it is announced.

Barney Dreyfuss

That the left-hander's salary demands are out of all reason and that his holdout "will last until doomsday" if he waits for any better offer from the local club, is the attitude of President Dreyfuss that was made known today. There will be no communication with the hurler, it is said, and if he is not in shape to pitch when the season opens he will be assessed a day's pay for each day that elapses until he is in condition, provided he is not traded in the meantime.

"IF ANY FURTHER move is made in this matter it will have to be made by the player himself," said President Dreyfuss. "He sent his contract back without a note of any kind so I do not think it is up to us to say anything. If he wants the subject reopened he will have to do it himself.

"If he wants to sign eventually, and is still on our roster, he will have to come down in his figures, for we certainly will not go up in ours. It is debatable whether a pitcher who has lost 18 ball games and failed to break even in the preceding season is worth an increase at all, but we voluntarily offered French a raise that ran into four figures.

"INSTEAD OF ACCEPTING that, for which he should have felt grateful in view of the quality of his work last year, French has demanded an increase of 115 per cent over his 1930 salary. In my opinion he is not that kind of pitcher, and is not entitled to any such salary. He is not going to get it.

"In view of present conditions and the extent of his service to the Pittsburgh club so far, as well as in fairness to other pitchers on the staff, I think French's demands are out of all reason. I do not consider him as valuable as some other pitchers on the roster, and if he does not care to work for us for what he is worth he can stay out."

THE LOCAL MAGNATE recalled the time when he had star lefthanders in pairs. He had Rube Waddell and Jesse Tannehill in 1901, and when Waddell was sold to the Chicago Nationals in mid-season he got Eddie Doheny from the Giants. In Tannehill and Doheny the Bucs had a couple of star southpaws in 1902. President Dreyfuss rates the 1902 team the greatest he ever owned. The catchers were Harry Smith, Chief Zimmer, Jack O'Connor and Eddie Phelps; the pitchers, besides Tannehill and Doheny, were Deacon Phillippe, Jack Chesbro and Sam Leever; Kitty Bransfield was at first base, Claude Ritchey at second, Honus Wagner at shortstop, Tommy Leach at third base, Fred Clarke in left field, Clarence Beaumont in center and first Lefty Davis and later Jimmy Sebring in right. Jimmy Burke and Wid Conroy were utility infielders and Fred Crolius extra outfielder. "I think that was Pittsburgh's greatest club," said the Corsair chief. "It was a team without a flaw."

Clark Griffith

ONE VETERAN BASEBALL man who can't see any good in the new ball, or at least in the one being tried in the National League if it is true that it has a heavier cover than that undergoing a test in the American, is Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club.

Griffith was a star pitcher in his day, and before taking his present office managed the White Sox, Yankees, Reds and Senators, so he ought to know what it's all about and his views accordingly command respect. But, singularly, he is the only magnate in the majors who does not believe the changed ball will reduce hitting.

GRIFFITH ADMITS THAT heavier stitches will increase the effectiveness of the pitchers by enabling them to get a better grip on the ball, but he says this advantage will be more than offset if the baseballs are made of heavier leather, contending it is impossible successfully to curve a ball with a thick cover.

"If that thick cover is used in the National League you can bank on it that higher figures both for batting averages and extra-base clouts will be the result," he said. "When the hitters find that what formerly were sharp, wide-breaking hooks have been reduced to mere wrinkles, they are going to slough the ball to all corners of the lot."

GRIFFITH offers a suggestion which he says really will enable the hurlers to overcome the edge the hitters have gained since the introduction of the lively ball. He would permit the pitcher to stand with one foot back of the rubber instead of with both feet touching the slab while in the act of starting his delivery, as at present. He made the suggestion to the rules committee this winter, but it was rejected because the committee feared it would make base-stealing too easy. Griff says these fears are unfounded, as the hurler would use this stance only when the bases were empty, and he contends it would give the slabman just enough additional momentum to add to his effectiveness in all types of delivery.

IN A LETTER from Uniontown, "Basketball Fan" says the correspondent who said Bus Albright, star Pitt center, had failed to make his high school team in 1925, was misinformed. "Bus was a letter man on the 1925 quintet at Uniontown High that won the state championship and went far in the national competition," he writes.

"Albright played in virtually every game throughout the season. Members of the Homestead High School team of 1925, which Uniontown defeated in the eliminations in Duke gym by two points, will corroborate the statement that in that memorable contest Bus made the last four points for Uniontown."

IN ITS OCCASIONAL queer way of doing things, the New York Boxing Commission, at the Petrolle-Tut hearing yesterday, failed to touch upon what many outside fans had looked upon as the most suspicious feature of the whole affair.

King Tut

That was the sudden switch in the betting odds just before the fight, when Petrolle became an 8-to-5 favorite, though Tut had been the choice up to that time. Sometimes such shifts mean nothing, but as a general rule they indicate that somebody knows something.

HOWEVER, THE COMMSSIONERS did not even discuss the matter, attributing much of the trouble to the fact that Jack Hurley, Petrolle's manager, had refused to deny to newspapermen a report that he was guaranteeing Tut $15,000. He did deny it before the commission, and Leo Levitt, of the Tut troupe, also denied that his fighter had received more than 30 per cent of the gate. "Would you be willing to be barred from New York state for life if you received more than 30 per cent?" a commissioner asked Levitt. "Yes," Levitt answered. Beyond that the board restricted its inquiry to asking the fighters about the first knockdown. Tut said it resulted from a left hook to the stomach, followed by a right to the jaw; that the pain from the body blow was so great he was unable thereafter to fight in his usual crouch and was an easy target for Petrolle.

MIDGET PROVES TOO FAST FOR OUR WILLIE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

"Bring on Archie Bell, Kid Francis or any of those fellows. We'll fight 'em all and give away weight. This kid's GOOD."

It was Johnny Keyes, so-called Mayor of Chinatown, of New York, speaking. He is by way of being the manager of Midget Wolgast, the flyweight champion of the world, and he was orating in the Midget's dressing room at Motor Square Garden following the windup bout there last night. Wolgast's foe was Willie Davies, of Charleroi, a great favorite with the local fans, and the Midget won from here to Johnny Keyes' favorite chop suey joint and back again in a spectacular battle that held the near-capacity crowd enthralled.

"Yes, sir," said Keyes to a gathering of admirers as Wolgast rested on a lounge before dressing, "bring on anybody. This kid is going to be a great bantamweight and he might as well begin fighting them now."

WINNER REAL CHAMPION

Technically, Wolgast is the flyweight champion only in the eyes of the New York and Pennsylvania boxing commissions, with the aged Frankie Genaro recognized by the National Boxing Association in its umpty-ump states. But, so far as the crowd that sat in on last night's shindy is concerned, the Midget can be champion not only of this entire mundane sphere, but also of all of the Celestial possessions of Johnny Keyes' Oriental disciples and their honored ancestors. Davies all but knocked out Genaro in a battle in the Meyers Bowl and Genaro went on to hold Wolgast to a draw in 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden, New York, for the title. Wolgast explains that bout by saying he broke his left hand in the second round and was lucky to finish, let alone hold his own.

The Midget and Davies were meeting for the seventh time last night, and a checkup with both principals after the battle revealed the fact that, of all of these meetings, Davies won only the first, at Atlantic City. Always since then the Midget's speed of hand and foot has been too dazzling for Willie to overcome, although when they first boxed in Pittsburgh, at the Garden, several years ago, this writer figured Davies' cleaner hitting entitled him to the edge, which officially went to Wolgast.

INTERESTING BATTLE

There was nothing to the bout last night insofar as a real contest was concerned, but it was a showy, pleasing affair all of the way. Davies, famous for always giving the fans a run for their money, kept forcing the champion about the ring, often chasing him, only to be outscored in every round but the third, in which he had a shade.

Wolgast, who has settled down considerably since he first showed here, now is set to punch and his timing is remarkable. He picks his spots and shoots home not one, but often several clean blows in such rapid succession that it is difficult for the eye to follow them. His left proved his best weapon against Davies. He hooked to the head and body solidly throughout and also jabbed with that fist and at times drove his right straight to the jaw or body. And he was so fast in moving to either side that he frequently had the clever and alert Davies all but nose-diving out of the ring as he sidestepped his rushes.

Davies was anything but disgraced in defeat, but he was clearly outboxed and outpunched. His left eye was cut slightly in the third round and he was painted with blood from his nose in the fourth, while, in the final round, the left eye again was opened and bled freely.

DUEL OF MASTERS

Neither man ever was in danger of a knockout, and there were no knockdowns, but it was a boxing exhibition that was a sight to behold between two masters of the art, with the younger and faster of the pair turning in a neat victory. Both scaled 115 pounds at 3 p. m.

Tiger Joe Randall, local Negro, 147½ pounds, dropped Jimmy McGraw, of Wheeling, 148, five times, but couldn't finish him, in the eight-round semi-final, and was in trouble himself in the sev-

TOMORROW: THE NEW TEX RICKARD OF THE BOXING GAME.

NEW BRIGHTON SHERIDANITES' FOE TONIGHT

Probable Lineup

Ford City		New Brighton
Liberto	F	Hurley
Hutchinson	F	Maybray
Bass	C	Beltsch
Ortman	G	Alexander
Ollinger	G	Verbanic

Ford City High School makes its annual bid for recognition in the W. P. I. A. L.'s championship elimination tournament tonight, the Section VI champs, for the third year in a row, squaring off against New Brighton, of Section IV, in an upper bracket first round game.

Last year, Ford City lost out to Uniontown in the initial round, 19 to 16. Buoyed by additional experience and with an impressive record for the regular season behind it, the Ford City quintet is looked up as the dark horse of the tourney.

Liberto, Bass and Ortman, who have played three years of sparkling ball for Coach Sheridan, compose a trio of exceptionally clever players. The team has won 17 out of 20 games played and was unbeaten in an even dozen section tussles.

BRIGHTON STRONG

New Brighton represented Section III in the 1929 tourney and last year, as a member of Section IV, did not cut much of a figure, Aliquippa representing that division in the tussling. This year, however, Coach Roark has constructed a formidable quintet, around stars of the caliber of of Hurley, a pip of a forward, Maybray, also a forward and Alexander, a guard. The team captured 13 out of 14 sectional tussels, losing only to Beaver Falls in the first half in an extra period battle. In all, New Brighton took down the honors in 15 out of 19 games.

Schenley Wins

Schenley bumpety-bumped into the championship of Section I of the City League yesterday afternoon in just such a ball game in the Pitt Stadium with Westinghouse. The two rivals wound up the regular play jammed up in a tie for the lead, and in yesterday's playoff, Schenley carried off a 22-19 decision.

The Bellefielders now will begin tussling Friday with South Hills, ruler of Section II, for the city title. The teams will clash in a three-game, or the best out of three games, series, playing Friday, of this week, and Tuesday and Friday of next.

Were either schools a member of the P. I. A. A., the winner of the city title would be eligible to clash with the eventual W. P. I. A. L. champion for the right to contest for the state title, but as neither is enrolled with the P. I. A. A., and neither very anxious to take up a franchise, the City League probably will certify Westinghouse and send the Brushtonites up against the W. P. I. A. L. champs.

Schenley had to come from behind to win yesterday. Westinghouse started with a rush and led by 8 to 4 at the end of the first period and 14 to 9 at the half. In the last two sessions, however, Westinghouse's attack cracked up on the rocks of Schenley's defense and the Bellefielders, scoring seven and six points respectively in the last two quarters, went on to win.

Bernie Friedman, while he didn't do much scoring, dumping a goal in each of the last two periods,

'GATORS TOP GROVERS

GROVE CITY, Pa., March 4.—Kerr's field goal in the last minute of play gave a fighting Allegheny quintet the verdict here last night over Bob Thorn's Grove City five, 24-23. Kerr personally conducted the rally that overcame a five-point lead.

ST. VINCENT'S BOWS

GREENVILLE, March 4.—Thiel College team closed its home season here last night with an impressive victory over St. Vincent's College, winning by a 41-24 score.

FITZSIMMONS YIELDS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 4.—John McGraw, manager of the Giants, talked with Fred Fitzsimmons, holdout pitcher, by long distance phone yesterday, and the slab star agreed to start here from his California home at once. Bill Terry, holdout first baseman, has been offered $22,500 for the season.

PITT, CARNEGIE COP BATTLES

By JESS CARVER.

The home town boys made a thorough job of cleaning up last night's basketball games with a brace of ambitious invaders. Carnegie Tech took the measure of West Virginia's Mountaineers, 34 to 26, and Pitt, after fiddling and foolin' around for the first half, scored a decisive triumph over Wash-Jeff, 32 to 15.

Nease

Prior to the varsity triumphs, the local frosh outfits went to work on the visiting yearlings, Tech's Plebes winning over the West Virginia first yearmen, 31 to 26, and Pitt's Cubs trouncing the Red and Black, 41 to 29.

Georgie (Don't Call Him Porgie) Nease, captain of the Skibo entourage, staged a brilliant display of basket-getting against West Virginia. George had a great first half, dropping in five field goals all from well out on the court. He was held more in check during the last period, but dumped in one two-ply goal and a set of fouls for a point total of 14.

TECH LEADS

Carnegie had West Virginia 18 to 10 at the end of the first half. West Virginia's passing was bad, its shooting worse and the general play of the Mountaineers of bush league caliber. The Morgantowners rallied in the second half, and at one time, were within two points of the Skibos, that being when the count stood at 23 to 21. Carnegie put on the pressure again and led by Eddie Stentz, pulled on

P. WANER TO JOIN PIRATES IN CAMP SOON

Allegheny-Kiski Valley Tournament Second Round Opens Tonight

HOT WEATHER AIDS BUCS IN CONDITIONING

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 4—Paul Waner, de luxe hitter of the Pirate brigade, who has been suffering with an infected leg for the past two weeks, is due to reach the Pirate camp by the last of the week, according to information reaching the Buccaneer camp today.

Brother Paul is expected to leave his Oklahoma home in a day or two. He is convinced that the curative water of Paso Robles will hasten his return to health.

Waner was bitten while bathing at Miami Beach, Fla. It develops his trouble grew from an insect bite a few inches above the ankle on one of his legs. The wound was treated carefully in a St. Louis hospital and Paul has responded in a satisfactory manner.

PRACTICALLY SIGNED

As mentioned in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph a few weeks ago Brother Paul is one of the players who has not signed, but it was learned authoritatively today that the differences between the right fielder and his employers are of such a small nature that the signing of the star will be more or less of a formality after he reaches camp. He has practically accepted terms.

The gap between the club and Larry French on the other hand is just as wide as it was a month ago. Larry is said to be holding out for a stupendous salary, and the lefthander is certainly putting his silent act on with much gusto. Not a word has been heard from him as he guides the destinies of a hotel in the wide open spaces of Oregon.

The most successful training season the Pirates have enjoyed in many years is progressing at the Paso Robles ball orchard. It seems that ole dad Sun with another go-od conditions. Yesterday the sun beamed down in such a striking manner the thermometer played well up around the 90 margin and there was no wind to mar the performances at the ball park. The sunshine was so hot the athletes had to call a halt at times to seek a shady spot.

WEATHER TORRID

As a result of the sustained hot weather, the team is well on the way to perfect shape. It was noted yesterday that even the first-string pitchers were bending hooks over the plate as they took their turn on the mound. Glenn Spencer and Claude Willoughby looked like a pair of right-handers who could take on the Cardinals, Cubs, Robins or Giants at a moment's notice.

"It is all quite remarkable," quoth Manager Ens as he surveyed the spectacle of his pitchers eager to bear down. Jewel had to caution his sharpshooters on many occasions. Ens stated he would play a squad game on Saturday.

The Pirate regulars will take on the San Francisco Seals Sunday at the local ball park. The same day will find the Bucco Yanigans clashing with the Baby Seals at Monterey, training town of the Coast Leaguers.

played a heads-up ball game for the victors. He used his coco exactly at the right time, passed accurately and broke up several well-intended Westinghouse rallies. Crum was the leading scorer, with three field goals and one foul.

Joe (Showboat) Ware, Westinghouse's crack Negro center, sank two field goals in the opening period but after that was impotent. Showboat drew three personal fouls in the first half and had to be very cautious after that which affected his play no little. Bobby Dye did his best which was not quite enough. The lineup:

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

PERSHING TELLS HOW ATTACK FAILED

Allied Barrage Broke Foe's Advance; American Troops Suffered Heavy Casualties

political and naval power of Germany would collapse.

My diary records:

"Chaumont, Sunday, July 14, 1918. Had interesting talk with Mr. John Bass in Paris yesterday on Italian situation. Gen. Rogers reports many shortages in quartermaster supplies. Had dinner at Provins with Gen. Petain, who expects German advance soon. Arrived at Chaumont late that night.

"This morning presided at exercises of Lycee and presented prizes. The children of the school gave me a beautiful volume, 'Episodes from the History of France,' for my son, which we shall long treasure.

"We held reception in the afternoon for civil and military officials. Possibility of making purchases in Japan discussed. Mail service unsatisfactory but difficult."

The celebration in Chaumont of the French national holiday, July 14, and similar occasions, in which French and Americans joined, served not only to relieve the strain of this period of the war but gave us a closer and clearer understanding of the French people and their hopes and fears.

On this particular day, in 1918, their spirits were high. "Liberte, Fraternite, Egalite" are too often only empty words that fail to inspire, but when uttered by a people in the throes of war, with everything at stake, the cry carries a special appeal to patriotic instincts that only those who have witnessed its effect can fully realize.

Mail Problem Difficult

The genuine gratitude they felt toward us was manifest in a thousand ways, and the fraternal spirit on both sides was dominant. I have often thought since that if we could but be guided under all circumstances by the sincere and sympathetic sentiments that then so strongly united in common purpose those who fought side by side, how much it would mean to the people of the world.

The prompt dispatch and delivery of mail for the Army, as noted in my diary, was difficult, yet, its bearing on the morale of the Army and the folk at home made it very important.

As far back as June, 1917, the Postmaster General had offered to aid in establishing an organization to assist in handling the mail for our forces, and had sent over a superintendent and several assistants.

While our numbers were still limited, the mail service went reasonably well. But as they increased, the problem became most difficult and a complete reorganization was necessary.

Some of the things that caused confusion were that divisions were disrupted to provide the special troops needed in the great emergency, and others that came over as units had been usually reconstructed at the last minute before embarkation, and records of assignments were not kept up to date.

Moreover, the public did not understand the composition of units and as a result letters were in a vast number of cases misdirected.

In May the Postal Service was taken from civil control and placed under the Adjutant General, A. E. F., and by July 1 full control had passed to the army. An officer of extended postal experience was sent to the States, with a full understanding of conditions, to arrange for giving publicity to instructions regarding the address of mail and to supervise shipment from points of embarkation.

Never Satisfactory

A military postal organization was established at each port of debarkation, where it was expected to receive mail, and a railway mail service organized along our lines of communication.

A central postoffice in connection with the central records office of the adjutant general's department, A. E. F., was established, corps and divisions were directed to organize postal departments, and it was arranged to forward mail units at the front through the regulating station with supplies.

This is a matter that should have been simplified by previous joint consideration by the general staff and the Postoffice Department, with regulations laid down beforehand for the guidance of all concerned. As a result of our efforts, there was considerable improvement, but the mail service never became entirely satisfactory.

Referring again to my diary:

Gen. Bullard

"Chaumont, Wednesday, July 17, 1918. Another German attack broke Monday. Our 42d, part of the 28th and the 3d became engaged. The latter counter-attacked and captured 600 prisoners. Advised Foch that the 32d and 29th Divisions are available at once.

"Five other divisions have been placed at his disposal. Situation yesterday more favorable for Allies. Gen. Bullard assigned to 3d Corps and Gen. Wright to 5th."

The battle lines in the Marne salient had stood without material change since early in June. It was evident that the question of interior transportation and supply for the enemy forces was troublesome, and could not be regarded by the enemy as satisfactory.

Prisoners Expose Plans

His effort of June 9 to improve his exposed position near Soissons, make a further approach and possibly open the route to the French capital, had met little success.

No further offensives of consequence against the British in Flanders having been immediately undertaken, interest was centered on the Champagne front as the most probable place to expect the next blow.

The American and French divisions that had been quietly concentrated in reserve west of the Marne salient for use with either the French or British, as circumstances might require, most of them carefully hidden in the forest of Villers-Cotterets and vicinity, were now about to get into the picture.

The intelligence services of all the Allied armies had been exerting every endeavor to discover the enemy's plans, with the result that for some days it appeared almost certain that his next move would be directed toward the southeast, on the right and left of Rheims.

On the evening of July 14 a French raiding party from Gen. Gouraud's 4th Army, then holding that part of the line including Rheims, luckily captured prisoners who confirmed this belief, and who gave the exact hour fixed for the attack, which they said was to take place the following morning.

Our 3d Division, still in line south of the Marne, faced the enemy between Jaulgonne and Chateau Thierry, and the 26th, which, as we have seen, had relieved the 2d, held a sector between Torcy and Vaux.

Infantry elements of the 28th were south of the Marne, serving with the two French divisions on either side of the 3d; the entire 42d occupied a support position behind Gouraud's front; the 1st Division was north of Meaux, and the 2d and 4th were in reserve near Chateau Thierry.

Americans Win Praise

The German offensive was launched on the early morning of July 15, as expected, but it was met with a surprise barrage put down by Gen. Gouraud's artillery half an hour before the start. The Germans' attack formations were thrown into confusion and their force seriously weakened to begin with. By evening, thanks to the strong resistance they encountered, the situation in that immediate sector was not unfavorable.

Our 42nd Division became engaged and sustained relatively heavy losses. Its conduct on the first and succeeding days brought high praise from the French Army Commander. Farther west, the enemy crossed the Marne, penetrating in one place as far as five miles.

He struck our 3d Division, which was posted along the river, in a determined attempt to force a crossing between Mezy and Varennes, and the fighting became intense, some units of the 30th and 38th Regiments holding this front being forced back. The stubbornness of their resistance, however, broke up the attack as a whole, and the Germans retired to the north bank.

On this occasion a single regiment of the 3d Division (Col. U. S. Alexander's 38th) wrote one of the most brilliant pages in our military annals. It prevented the crossing at certain points on its front, while on either flank the Germans who had gained a footing pressed forward.

Our men, firing in three directions, met the German attacks with counter-attacks at critical points, and succeeded in throwing two German divisions into complete confusion.

Allies Heartened

Men from three different enemy divisions were captured by the 3d in the fighting of this day. By noon of the sixteenth the attacks against its line came to a halt.

The Germans were stopped to the east of Rheims by Gouraud's Fourth Army with but slight gains, while to the southwest they got across the Marne and made some progress toward Epernay.

The failure of the attack in Champagne and the relatively slight gains to which the Germans were held to the west of Rheims on the first day, materially heartened the Allies.

Although there were some 10 divisions of the enemy remaining south of the Marne, the very evident conclusion, judging from the results of the following two days and the losses he had suffered, was that he would be unable to continue the offensive.

Our First Army Corps, on the front from Chateau Thierry to Bois de Belleau, was in position to be expanded, and there was the possibility of adding still another corps to that front.

The original plan, which contemplated the first employment of this corps in the St. Mihiel region, with headquarters at Toul, had, like so many plans, been upset temporarily by the changing situation caused by the successive German victories.

The Chateau Thierry region now seemed indicated as the sphere of activity for Americans for the time being.

Enemy Lose Advantage

With a corps already in that vicinity, the first step had been taken, and there now appeared some prospect of uniting several divisions on that front. In addition to the seven American divisions in the vicinity, there were 19 in France, five in quiet sectors in Vosges, five behind the British lines, five in training areas, two in depots, and two just arrived.

So we then had in France the equivalent of 52 French or average British divisions. Omitting the six in training areas and the two in depots, there remained for service at the front a force of Americans equal in number to 36 Allied divisions.

Thus at this time the American combat reinforcement to the Allies more than offset the reinforcements Germany had been able to bring from the Eastern to the Western front after the collapse of Russia. Without the addition of the Americans the Allies would have been outnumbered nearly 400,000 men.

Now that the Allied armies were no longer in jeopardy it seemed opportune to push the formation of our own army near Chateau Thierry for use against the Marne salient in the counter-offensive I had frequently urged. The outlook for the Allies had changed materially since the crisis of early June. The enemy had been held in his most recent attacks and his losses were presumably very great.

He was losing the advantage of numbers and his superiority was passing.

(Tomorrow: With Americans as spearhead, Allies counter heavy German attack on Marne and gain decisively.)

Acid Tests Applied to Real Estate Bonds

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

EVENTS OF THE PAST TWO YEARS have given acid tests to the more recent issues of real estate mortgage bonds. Sound and unsound financing of building operations has been clearly differentiated.

Where sound principles of investment have been followed, real estate bond issues still are maintaining the excellent records established in past years. Where these principals have been disregarded, defaults and receiverships have told the story.

If real estate mortgage bond issues and their present conditions are listed under the originating houses, a clear picture of the practices followed in making real estate loans is available.

The real estate bond houses which kept their feet on the ground during the final years of the construction boom have only a negligible number of sour issues to put on their score. The houses, which financed on inflated appraisals and which failed to use reasonable discretion in estimating future earnings of properties, have a sad record.

Unsound Firms Eliminated

THE OVERBUILT CONDITION encountered early in 1929 and the subsequent general business depression have eliminated most of the organizations which engaged in real estate financing on an unsound basis. In a few cases receiverships of the bond houses resulted. The financing organizations which kept their operations on conservative lines have been unharmed although they may have turned to other types of financing to maintain their sales organizations during the current lull in building activity.

One large organization which has steady demand for real estate securities, has refrained from bringing out any new offerings recently but has used its distribution facilities to provide a secondary market for customers wishing to sell its original offerings. This has made it possible to maintain a fairly good market for its issues in view of the uncertain conditions affecting other classes of bonds.

Place for Real Estate Bonds

REAL ESTATE MORTGAGE bonds, when properly issued, appear to have a perfectly logical position in the investment world. The chief objection to them is the lack of marketability. The market for most real estate bonds is dependent entirely on the willingness of the originating house to buy them and to redistribute them through its regular sales organization.

In compensation for this narrow market, they usually offer a higher rate of interest than other types of securities possessing a comparable degree of safety.

The logical appeal of real estate mortgage bonds is to the individual who wishes to put a portion of his investment funds into securities with a high yield but who does not expect to liquidate this portion of his funds before maturity of the bonds.

Guarantee Eliminated

WITH THE NEXT RESUMPTION of large scale building activity, it is to be expected that new real estate financing will again assume large proportions. The bond houses whose securities have weathered the depression will again be in a position to appeal to investors.

Until recently it was the practice of most real estate mortgage bond houses to imply a guarantee of their issues. While there was no definite obligation for them to do this, the common practice was for the originating houses to take over properties which defaulted and to carry the interest until they were restored to a satisfactory earning basis.

In view of the fact that other types of investment houses do not assume any such obligation and since real estate bonds, when issued on conservative lines, should offer ample security in themselves, implied guarantees against losses to investors will cease to be made.

MARKET BREAKS UNDER RAIL SELLING

Mid-day Rally Wipes Out Portion of Early Losses; Industrials Turn Weak

NEW YORK, March 4 (AP.)—Shrinkage of railway dividends crowded more favorable developments out of speculative vision on Wall street today, and the stock market broke sharply.

Efforts to translate a bullish interpretation of the size of the Muscle Shoals investment into a rise in public utilities shares made little headway against the downward trend of the list as a whole.

TREND MIXED

The mid-week business statistics disclosed mixed trends after an irregular opening the market plunged downward under heavy selling during the morning. Losses of 2 to 7 were sometimes recorded. Around mid-day efforts were made to pick up the utilities and some of a point or two were recovered, but retained with difficulty.

The market turned dull during the afternoon. Pressure developed and Union Pacific dropped about 4 to 7 points, then recovered half their losses. Similar moves at Rock Island, Baltimore and Ohio, Southern Pacific and New York Central lost 2 to more than 3 points.

INDUSTRIALS LOST

A long list of industrials and utilities made extreme losses of 2 to 3 points, including U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, American Can, American Telephone, North American, Westinghouse, Du Pont and American Smelting. Standard Gas was a firm spot, rising more than 2 points.

Credit conditions were stationary, with call money steady to firm at 1½ per cent.

GOLD SUPPLY UP IN 1930

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Federal Reserve Board, submitting its annual report to Congress today, said the stock of monetary gold in the United States increased $310,000,000 last year.

This was only $100,000,000 less than the peak increase of 1927. While that movement came mostly from Europe, the latest influx was from Japan, China and Latin-America. From the latter quarter and from Australia gold shifted also to England.

In general, the movement of gold was one from outlying countries producing raw materials to the financial centers and bore no relation to differentials in money rates, according to the report. The difficulties in which the outlying countries found themselves reflected chiefly a decline in the value of many of their most important commodity exports, as well as the effects of a long period of conditions in the United States unfavorable to the flotation of foreign bonds.

Mexican Government Bolstering Silver

MEXICO CITY, March 4. (AP.)—As a measure for stabilizing the silver peso, which in recent months has fallen off greatly in value, President Ortiz Rubio has signed an order obliging banks established in Mexico to convert their reserve guarantees on silver deposits into silver currency.

Gold and negotiable stocks held by the banks as guarantee for silver deposits must be changed into silver pesos, under the terms of the order.

Pennsylvania Oil Activities Increase

OIL CITY, Pa., March 4.—The Derrick says 180 wells were completed in the Pennsylvania grade crude area during February, with an initial production of 490 barrels. This compares with 160 wells with an initial production of 455 barrels in January.

There were 57 rigs building and 154 wells drilling at the end of February, against 46 rigs building and 197 wells drilling at the end of January.

A. P. I. Oil Figures Decline for Week

NEW YORK, March 4.—Daily average crude oil production in the United States decreased 64,350 barrels in the week ended February 28, totaling 2,160,900 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute's weekly statistics indicate. Daily average production east of California decreased 36,250 barrels to 1,578,600 barrels.

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP.)—Raw sugar was quiet and unchanged early today. No sales were reported, but in nearby positions yesterday 2,000 bags of Philippines sold at 3.05 cents, duty paid, to refining interests.

Raw futures opened 2 points lower and showed little change during the balance of the session, with May prices unchanged from the opening, the volume of business was small. Afternoon reports from the refining market section reported that refiners operators in general inclined to hold off and await fresh developments.

Refined was unchanged with refiners adhering to their quoted basis of the 4.50c level for fine granulated.

Dividend Cuts Fail to Hurt Stock Prices

By B. C. FORBES

IN MY TRAVELS I find interest in the stock market far from dead among business men in different communities. Apparently a very large number of business men were lured into the stock market during the 1928-1929 boom. Although nearly all had their fingers badly burned, they have not been cured of the speculation germ.

Mr. Forbes

The indications are that many will reenter the market after an upward movement has progressed for some time. As a matter of fact, the recent spectacular advance incited more or less outside buying, even though the movement was quite widely regarded with suspicion.

I discovered very little interest in bonds on the part of individuals. It is clear that stocks, not bonds, have captured the imagination of the American public. Bigger and broader markets than any yet seen doubtless will be experienced before the nation is many years older.

THE CHAIRMAN of one nationally-known company, who travels a lot, sends the following communication to this column:

"People may condemn the stock exchange all they please, but the plain facts are that when prices of securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange are increasing, so the optimism of the entire people increases even among those who talk about money trusts, stock gamblers, etc.

"The recent upward trend of prices of securities on the New York Stock Exchange has done more to encourage the people of this nation and revive their hopes that we shall again have prosperity than all other factors combined; and if this upward trend can be consistently continued for another two or three weeks, we shall have a wonderful impetus to the restoration of confidence and active development.

"Whatever were the forces behind the upward trend in security prices, let us hope they will continue their activities in this direction, and bless them for it. It shows they have confidence, and it shows that the people are following them as leaders."

NEITHER THE business nor the financial world can derive comfort from this year's dividend developments—except the comforting thought that dividend declarations are based on past performances rather than on future prospects.

The February figures, compiled exclusively for this column, make the worst showing of recent years. As in January, there were more dividend reductions than increases, for the two months favorable dividend announcements have totaled 187, whereas unfavorable announcements have reached 286. A year ago the cheerful announcements numbered 289, the gloomy announcements only 76.

Nor can the hope be held out that depressing dividend news is about over. Corporate profits during the current quarter cannot but be unsatisfactory in a great majority of cases. Which means that smaller disbursements to stockholders will be made throughout the first half of the year. The second half, it is hoped, will check this trend.

THERE WERE 70 improved dividend declarations by industrial and public utility companies last month, as follows—railroads did not contribute to the total:

	Industrial.	Public Utility.
Extra	23	1
Increased	14	1
Initial	11	3
Stock	7	2
Resumed	6	0
Totals	63	7

BUT LOOK at this summary of unfavorable announcements:

	IND.	P.U.	R.R.
Decreased	64	2	2
Deferred	43	1	1
Omitted	36	3	0
Totals	143	6	3

THE FOLLOWING tables give month by month comparisons of both favorable and unfavorable announcements since the end of 1926:

PERHAPS IT is significant that stocks rarely decline when directors announce dividend cuts. The stock market has adjusted itself to such action.

Power Commission Chief's Wife Dead

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. George Otis Smith, wife of the chairman of the Federal Power Commission, died last night after a brief illness. She was 59.

STEEL DEMAND HOLDING UP

NEW YORK, March 4. The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

A gain of 10 per cent in pig iron production in February and a further slight increase in ingot output during the past week are reassuring factors in the iron and steel industry.

Irregularities in the flow of orders, always more noticeable in a period of subnormal activity, continue to obscure the trend of business, particularly for manufacturers of a single product or a narrow range of products. Nevertheless, viewed as a whole, the impressive feature of the market is not the temporary setbacks experienced by some producers or the gains shown by others, but the sustained though gradual expansion in the total consumption of metal.

Raw steel output has risen at Cleveland, Chicago and in the Wheeling district and has receded in the Valleys and at Buffalo. Average steel output for the country at large is estimated at 53 per cent, compared with 52 per cent a week ago. Further gains in the general average are looked for during the current month, although no attempt is being made to forecast the rate of increase or the proportion of the increment that will be contributed by specific products.

With mill operations in close step with consumption, backlogs have lost much of their significance. It is entirely possible that the unfilled tonnage of the Steel Corporation and other leading producers was reduced in February, but the important consideration from the standpoint of production is the flow of shipping orders rather than the piling up of contract obligations.

Forward commitments, under present conditions, are limited mainly to the railroads and other large consumers.

Pig iron production in February was 1,708,621 tons, or 60,950 tons a day, compared with 1,714,266 tons, or 55,299 tons a day. On a daily basis there was a gain of 5,651 tons, or 10.2 per cent. While the upturn begun in January was continued, output was the smallest for any February since 1922. Blast furnaces operating on March 1 numbered 108, as against 102 on February 1 and 95 on January 1.

Automobile production is responding more rapidly to rising spring demands and present schedules indicate a March output for this country and Canada of 275,000 to 300,000 cars.

OIL MARKETING CODE UPHELD

CHICAGO, March 4.—The board of directors of the American Petroleum Institute voted unanimously to petition the Federal Trade Commission to rescind its order withdrawing approval of most of the petroleum code of marketing practices.

The board declared that in its opinion the code was lawful; that its observance involved no violation of the anti-trust laws, and that the industry could carry on lawfully under the code.

The 16,000 companies and individuals that have signed the code were asked by the board to continue their adherence pending final action of the Federal Trade Commission and the Petroleum Institute.

President E. B. Reeser, of the institute, was authorized to appoint a committee to discuss with the commission the retention of the code upon such terms as the commission may approve and subject to the approval of the institute.

International 'Phone Unifies Services

NEW YORK, March 4.—Consolidation of the management and control of the telegraph and radio services of International Telephone Corporation has been effected. Neither the corporate form nor the financial structure of the operating companies is affected.

Included in the unification of service are the Commercial Cable Company, All-America Cables, Inc., and Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company, which, together with Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, constitute the International system.

Refrigerator Firm Reports Sales Gain

C. M. Clark, of the Zee-Rad Company, Inc., of Pittsburgh, distributors of the Copeland electric refrigerators here, has announced a big gain in sales of the Copeland in January over the same month last year. Louis Ruthenburg, president and general manager of Copeland Products, Inc., said the unit shipments for the month were 142.92 per cent above unit shipments for January, 1930.

Chrysler Reports Satisfactory Trade

DETROIT, March 4.—While Chrysler Corporation has not released official figures on its February business, it is understood that all divisions of the corporation had a satisfactory month.

It is also likely that there is some prospect if March business holds up to early promises that Chrysler will make a fair showing toward its first quarter dividend.

Zanft Elected by Trans-Lux Movie

NEW YORK, March 4.—John Zanft, formerly vice president of the Fox Theaters Corporation, has been elected vice president of Trans-Lux Movie Corporation. He will be in charge of theaters and expansion. An announcement said the company planned to open three daylight theaters in New York this month and to extend its chain throughout the country.

Lorrimer Becomes Uneasy After Larry Visits

CHAPTER XVII.

Mathews started to answer, but at that moment Travers and Mary Lou came in, booted and spurred, with a hint of winter winds about them, Lorrimer's sallow face glowing and Mary Lou's like nothing so much as a rose.

"We're starved, aren't we, Lorry? I hope there's lots of tea! No, I'd rather have milk, if Peter doesn't mind," said Mary Lou, changing her mind, "and so would you, Lorry. You need to get some fat on that rack of bones," she assured him. "Dr. Mathews, I don't suppose you approve of stuffing between meals?"

"I seem to be making an impression on this plate of toast," the doctor told her. They were old friends by now. "And in your case, Delight, I certainly do approve, for you use up enough energy for six girls in 24 hours, and this household is so fashionable it dines late. But what about your figure?"

"What about it?" asked Mary Lou, laughing. "I stay the same weight, year round, almost. Remember I'm riding every day—and Lorry is going to let me jump next spring. And I've my daily dozen. And do a lot more besides. And so, I'm hungry most of the time," she confessed.

There was a scratch at the library door, and an inquiring whine.

Growing Into Her Role

"Oh, please may he come in?" Mary Lou begged. "He's been awfully good about waiting outside!"

Lorrimer rose and opened the door. Konig bounced past him, loped across the room and sat himself down at Mary Lou's feet, with a huge sigh of relief, his red tongue flickering across her hand and his entire body one welcoming waggle. Mary Lou tickled his pointed ears and gave him a forbidden lump of sugar.

Mathews raised an eyebrow at Margaret Lorrimer, remembering the long years when dogdom had been banished from this house.

Mary Lou drank her milk and lay back relaxed in her chair, her eyes on the small, bright fire, far back on the great stone hearth. She was healthily tired, she was happy. They'd had a glorious ride, she and Lorry; she was improving. She would make an expert horsewoman some day, he had said; for her hands were firm on the reins, she had a naturally good seat and she was quite fearless. He had praised her today, more than ever, and she was coming to depend upon his praise. And it was doing him so much good.

"That's what I'm here for," she reminded herself. She had to remind herself. She was growing into her role, it had become part of her. She would have frowned in sudden astonishment if anyone had called her Mary Lou. She had been Mary Lou years ago, in another life. Now she was—Delight.

At first she had worked hard in her part, now it was second nature to her. Understanding instinctively where a great deal of the trouble lay, she had set about eradicating it as much as possible. She had made him talk about the war, about his days at the front, about his service. He had, she knew from his mother and from experience, been left with a curious horror of airplanes. Now and then one passed over the house, and even lately, stronger though his nerves had become, it affected him unpleasantly, set him to shaking, to stammering a little. If she could get him to talk out his experiences, to drag out into the sunlight the things that ate at him and festered in the darkness, it would help.

Larry Visits

Later, if she could interest him in aviation, get him perhaps to take a flight, as a passenger, much of the shock reaction would depart, thought Mary Lou, wisely. But that would come in time. She made him, too, tell her about his prison camp experiences and she then set him and herself a task, brushing up the little German each possessed in order to read, at first hand in the original, some of the wise and moving books that had come out of post-war Germany, books without bitterness or malice, emanations of the war from the other side. If he could, she thought, get some insight into those alien minds and think of them as, somehow, brothers in experience and reaction, rather than enemies, a great deal of damage might be undone.

Jenny and her gang were helping; everything combined to help. Larry Mitchell had come out to see her, after a careful coaching, by mail, in his part. Larry was to be, she told him, a friend met on shipboard, someone who had helped her over her first hard, lonely months in New York. And Larry, once the part was entrusted to him, played up, taking an unholy pleasure in calling her "Delight" about every other sentence. She had met him alone, at the station, the evening he came out to dine, and had managed to crowd a lot of her experiences into the short drive and to tell him many of her plans.

"I've got to make a good job of it," she said, "and you must help t— If you won't, if you think you can't, I'll drive you right back to the station, this minute. We can't risk mistakes."

She was driving the roadster, Mrs. Lorrimer, when she found that Mary Lou had for some years driven her uncle's little car, had given her the roadster for her own use, and she was handling it like a veteran.

Lorrimer Is Uneasy

"Don't shoot," Larry had begged, "I'll come down!"

He had been consumed with curiosity and amazement. He had been afraid for Mary Lou; he had thought the whole scheme madness. But once at Westwood House his fear and disapproval had vanished. He had fallen in love with Mrs. Lorrimer and had felt a certain swift pity for Lorrimer, knowing his story, once brought in contact with his personality. And as for Mary Lou, she'd carry the thing off. Only, knowing all the circumstances, he naturally asked himself what would happen when the inevitable reckoning came, and what would happen if Mary Lou were to fall in love? But knowing her, also, he did not dare mention the possibility to her.

Lorrimer received him courteously, if a trifle suspiciously, and his mother noticed, watched the younger man all through the meal and the evening which followed. But he said nothing and seemed, even, to be attracted, for Larry succeeded, telling his wild exaggerated tales of life on a tabloid, in making Lorrimer forget himself, more than once, in laughter.

So this afternoon, Mrs. Lorrimer reminded Mary Lou that Larry had not been out again.

"Why don't you ask him for Christmas?" she wanted to know. "Didn't you tell me he was quite alone?"

"That's awfully sweet of you," Mary Lou thanked her, glowing. "I know he'd love to come. Yes, he's alone; nothing but boarding house or hotel for Christmas dinner."

Lorrimer received Larry a little suspiciously.

Lorrimer frowned, the observant doctor saw, but did not speak.

A little later, the two of them made their way upstairs together and Lorrimer followed Mary Lou to her door, instead of parting from her on the gallery landing.

"Look here," he said abruptly, "I like Mitchell all right, but—"

"But what?" she asked, as he stopped her, her heart beating nervously.

"He's in love with you!" stated Lorrimer, bluntly.

"No," Mary Lou looked at him directly and spoke soberly, "no, he is not. Nor am I in love with him, Lorry. We're good friends, he's been fine to me. I'm grateful, and we're fond of each other. But that's all. Please don't think things!" she begged.

"I'll try and believe you," he muttered, "though how he could know you and not—" Suddenly he caught her hand and held it in a merciless grip. "I have been patient, Delight," he told her, "I am—trying to be patient still. If—if ever you come to care for me again, I think you will be honest enough to tell me so. I'll never ask you, never demand anything, never make my claim. But I have a claim. You must remember that. Always. If—if after you've given me a long enough trial you decide that—that you can't care again, I'll let you go, make it easy for you. But, meantime, you are my wife."

It was the first time—in so long—that he had said anything of the sort. Their friendship had progressed along apparently normal lines; they were close friends, intimate comrades, and all these weeks he had not said . . .

"Please," urged Mary Lou, growing white, "please—"

"It is still so distasteful to you? Well," he straightened up and released her hand, "you have my promise. I wouldn't have said anything unless the subject of this—other fellow had come up. Well, it did come up, I—just reminded you, Delight, that's all."

He left her looking at her crushed fingers and realizing how delicate the ground she walked on, how complicated and precarious her situation.

She went into her room and ran the bath water and started getting out of her riding clothes. It seemed to her that her hand still hurt where he had clenched it in his own, and her heart hurt her too, vaguely, indefinitely, but with a faint warning which caused her eyes to widen with misgiving.

DAILY TRUE STORY— Law of Desert

The shimmering sands of the Mohave desert in the lower part of the state of California invited beckoningly to the 52-year-old prospector, Jerry King. He glanced contentedly over his right shoulder at the tall blue ridge mountains that had surrendered to him a tidy little fortune of $80,000, all of which he carried in his brown money belt that surrounded his waist. He felt it cautiously to insure its nearness, and then prodding his tiny burro, he headed out into the burning sands.

As the tiny caravan started it's long trail across the trackless waste, two pairs of eyes glittered greedily in anticipation from a rocky cleft some 300 yards away. They belonged to Pedro Quartico, a half breed with a bad reputation that was well known through several states, and Juan Alvarez, his ally, whose reputation nearly equaled that of his partner's.

Oblivious of the danger that was stalking him, Jerry King trodded happily on his way. As the shades of night began to make their appearances, he headed toward a little gully formed by two large ridges of sand. Before the moon had risen very high in the heavens, he had eaten and prepared for the night. As soon as his head hit his hastily improvised pillow, made of an extra saddle blanket, he fell into a deep sleep.

Awakened by Robbers

Along toward morning, he was awakened by a soft muffled curse which caused him to reach quickly for his gun. His hand clutched only the cold sand. Instinctively, he reached for his money belt to find that it had been cut away from him. His sudden movements brought the grinning Pedro to his side.

"It is too bad the Senor should awaken at this moment. If he had slept for a little longer, he would have lived. But now," he raised the rifle to his shoulder, "Nov: he must die."

King looked up the long barrel of steel that was any second ready to send a piece of lead into his brain. Still he remained calm. It would be so quick, he wouldn't know what happened. Inwardly, he cursed himself for sleeping so heavily. Still Pedro held the rifle on the level with his eyes. He began to wonder what was causing the delay.

Slowly, ever so slowly, the half breed brought down the barrel until it pointed into the sand. A malicious grin crept across his dark features.

"I believe I have a better plan. One that will not cause any suspicion when they find your body." He tied King's hands behind him and walked off to confer with Juan who was busily engaged in preparing breakfast. For three full minutes, he talked with his ally and the plan evidently met with approval, as Juan roared in delight.

The sun failed to make its regular morning appearance. The reason was for low scudding dark clouds filled the sky. A strong wind was blowing in from the west, sending gust upon gust of sand whipping across the desert.

Pedro climbed to the top of the gully and scanned the heavens. Shaking his head doubtfully, he descended back to the camp.

"It is best," he said, "that we stay here until this approaching storm has passed."

Drinks Poison Water

Pedro came scurrying with food for the victim. "A very good idea," he commented, seating himself beside King. "As he eats, I shall tell him."

He held a sandwich up to the prospector's mouth. "You wonder why I brang no water for you. When you are thirsty we will let you drink, but it will be from a pool that brings death quickly. When your body is found, they think you made a mistake. Nobody will be blamed and we will go free."

The storm continued to rage for two hours. The wind was most terrific, tossing cactus and sand about like leaves. Finally it subsided. The sun came peeking out of the clouds and began to send its warm rays down onto the desert. The three men and the burro headed due northeast. The hours passed quickly to King, who silently watched for a chance of escape. At 1 o'clock, they came upon a water hole. A sign with the words "Poison! Don't drink!" crudely inscribed on it, had been freshly placed on the very edge of the muddy water.

"Now Gringo, drink!" Pedro commanded.

King weighed his chances in the split second offered him. He could make a break for freedom, but his chances of escaping would be almost impossible. If he drank from the pool, he might find a way to stave off the poison and win out.

He bent over the pool and drank meagerly from the murky water. It's taste was not bitter, much to his surprise. Finally, he stood up.

Pedro and Juan seemed satisfied.

"Now, my American friend, you can start walking south. I hope the drink will not interfere with your health too much." Pedro's sneering laugh flailed his soul.

King did as he was told. The long hours of the afternoon passed without him feeling the grip of the poison alkali. Around dusk, two figures on horseback approached him. He hailed them joyfully. One was Henry Calhoun, the sheriff of Niles Center. The other was George Manson, his deputy.

Through dry caked lips, he told his story to the two men. At the end, both were smiling faintly.

"You ain't poisoned, Poo. That pool you drank from is okay. That sign must have been blown all the way from Devil's Pit, about a mile from the pool where you drank. That's where you drank. That's where we're heading for. A tenderfoot blew into town and told us that he had replaced the sign in the ground. The location he gave brought us to the conclusion that the sign must have been carried by the storm this morning over to the good drinking water. An odd coincidence, but we've got to take it down and bring it back to it original resting place so any travelers happening along won't be drinking the wrong water.

As for your purse, we may run across those fellows later. In that case, we'll take care of them. But now let's get this first job over with."

A half hour's ride brought them to the first pool. The sign was quickly pulled up and 15 minutes later they reached Devil's pit. The sign was stuck into the ground, and they were about to leave when the sheriff whistled sharply.

Bandits Found Dead

He bent over the pool and examined something. He straightened up and turned toward King.

"How many men did you say there were?" he asked.

"Two," came the answer.

"Wait here, I'm taking a little ride." The sheriff jumped on his horse and was quickly lost in the semi-darkness.

Some 10 minutes later he came back, bearing a brown money belt. "Is this yours?" he asked casually.

King grabbed it and looked over the contents. "Yes, and it's all here, too. Where are they?"

"I found them dead up yonder," came the answer, "I guess something good happened after all with the sign being blown away. They thought this was good water and stopped here to take a drink. Nature also does her own judging at times. People may call it hair-brain luck, but to me, it all comes under the law of the desert.

The People Are Defied

Council's Refusal to Investigate the Supplies Scandal Is a Challenge That Calls for Action.

Word comes from the Kline-controlled majority in City Council that the citizens' demand for an open investigation of what the Mayor politely calls "irregularities" in the Department of Supplies will be rejected.

In effect the defiant councilmen sneeringly ask, "What are you going to do about it?"

The people of Pittsburgh will not be slow to take up that challenge.

With Council doing nothing, with the Mayor doing nothing, and District Attorney Park doing nothing, either to uncover the full extent to which the city has been plundered, or to prosecute the guilty, or to compel restitution, it might seem at first blush that the taxpayers had no recourse.

But other political bosses even more powerful than Pittsburgh's petty autocrats have followed the same course, only to learn to their sorrow that the people cannot be defied with impunity.

If it comes to the worst, Pittsburgh may find it necessary to call for an investigation by the Governor, or the Attorney General, or by the General Assembly.

Have Mayor Kline and his sycophants in the Council ever heard of the Lexow Committee of the New York Legislature? The corrupt bosses of New York City thought themselves in an impregnable position. They, too, sneered at the citizens' demand for a square deal. Then came Clarence Lexow with the proposal that the Legislature intervene, and it did; it cleaned the Augean stables and the bosses and their henchmen were disgraced and swept out of power.

Pittsburgh would prefer to wash its own dirty linen, but if the local authorities refuse to render the service, there may be no alternative but to solicit assistance from Harrisburg. Mayor Kline and the Kline councilmen might as well disabuse their minds now as later of any belief they may entertain that the people will tire of the matter and yield to them in their effort to keep the dirty business concealed.

Things have now reached a stage where it may be for the best for Council not to conduct the inquiry. It is so obvious that only Councilman Robert Garland and Charles Anderson really favor a real investigation, so obvious that Kline's supporters desire to suppress the evidence and protect someone, that any inquiry that they might make probably would be nothing but a whitewash party anyway.

The citizens, perhaps, should lose no time in looking elsewhere for relief from this shameful betrayal of trust by city officials.

On to Harrisburg!

Pittsburgh Should Send Large Delegation to Help Repeal the Blue Law.

Athletic associations with total membership of 4,000 met in Philadelphia Sunday to arrange for attendance at the hearing to be held by the House Law and Order Committee March 17 on the Musmanno Sunday Home Rule Bill.

What is Pittsburgh going to do about it?

A great "on to Harrisburg!" movement is under way in Philadelphia. It is proposed to send a large and imposing delegation to the hearing and to tell the Legislature in no uncertain way that the people earnestly desire to be freed from the senseless shackles of the 1794 Blue Law.

It is desirable that the Legislature should know that sentiment at this end of the state is equally strong for repeal of the statute.

The opponents of a change will be out in force. The 11 mass meetings that they recently held in Pittsburgh give assurance that they are not napping.

They have the support of only one-sixth of the voters of Allegheny County. The five-sixths majority must guard, however, against overconfidence. Their voice must be heard in Harrisburg in a manner befitting their number.

Cheap Transportation

The Monongahela Answers Those Who Question the Wisdom of Waterway Improvements.

Spokesmen for the railroads are questioning the wisdom of waterway improvements. One of them said recently he doubted if, with allowance made for cost of maintenance and interest on the investment, water transportation would be found to be really cheaper than transportation by rail; and he gave some examples to prove his point.

He conveniently omitted any mention of the rivers in the Pittsburgh district, but the upholders of waterway improvements are not doing so, and the result is that some interesting figures showing the benefits of transportation on the local streams are receiving national attention.

The Monongahela answers those who say it does not pay to spend any considerable sum of money to make the rivers navigable. As pointed out by Cleveland A. Newton, general counsel for the Mississippi Valley Association, it is the only inland waterway in the country completely improved and in full operation.

About 30,000,000 tons of coal were carried on the Monongahela last year, Mr. Newton states, at a saving to the shippers of 94 cents a ton under the rail rate, or a total of $28,200,000. The improvement cost $16,000,000 and the cost of maintenance and operation last year was $900,000; so that even on the basis suggested by the railroads as the proper way of determining if a waterway pays the Monongahela was an exceedingly profitable undertaking.

Bucking the Trend

Profit Makers in 1930 Met Challenge of Depression By Adjusting Operations to Changed Conditions.

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Heads of more than 170 American corporations resisted the temptation to talk hard times in 1930 and proceeded instead to earn larger profits for their companies than in the previous year.

In a red ink year, these exceptional profit makers progressed, while a much larger array of corporations reported substantial declines in net earnings.

Aggregate returns of 537 domestic corporations disclosed a combined net income equal only to 66 per cent of the 1929 profits, according to the Standard Statistics Company. In the case of 423 companies for which comparable four-year data are at hand, the 1930 results were equal to 77 per cent of 1928 profits and 88 per cent of the total for 1927.

The capacity of a select group of competently managed companies to buck the tides in a year of maximum depression constitutes a challenge to the average person who has been using "hard times" as an alibi for his own poor performance.

The exceptional profit makers in 1930 for the most part took the leadership in quickly adjusting their operations to changed conditions.

Instead of resisting commodity price declines and hoping for a comeback, they accepted the new levels, and set out through increased effort and intelligent economies to make their operations profitable on the lower price basis.

Others took advantage of the general letdown in enthusiasm and in selling zeal to increase their advertising appropriations and improve their own merchandising methods.

Adaptability to radical changes has become a prime attribute for successful management in this era of mercurial shifts in conditions.

Alert managers have recently strengthened the standing of their companies in their own industries.

A new motive for mergers will be to spread the jurisdiction of superior management wider.

Perhaps as the country approaches economic maturity, management in the large will be better able to stabilize employment opportunities and business volume.

Before the economic readjustment is over, larger capitalists, who play the tunes to which company executives dance, will doubtless make further important personnel changes at the top.

Highly press-agented company heads, who draw fat salaries, have in some instances shown that they were only fair weather operators, who depended on favorable external forces.

The men who succeeded by means of a resolute determination to fight conditions are made of sterner stuff.

In passing, it should be recognized that some industries, such as foodstuffs, tobacco and amusements, are less sensitive to the depressing influences than highly vacillating trades, such as copper, steel, sugar, oil and textiles.

Perhaps in some of the more vulnerable industries supremely able management is shown in improving the relative position of a company in its field.

In all industries, however, depression comes not only as a challenge, but also as a seasoning process.

The emerging business leaders are those who use depression as an occasion for ridding business of unsound and inefficient practices.

All other executives are in danger of being unseated.

Man—Halfway House Between Atom, Star

By Archibald Henderson

It has been well said that the universe is made up of atoms and stars. The one we may think of as a microcosm—or little universe; the other as a macrocosm—or big universe. The atom is not unlike the universe itself. Perhaps the universe is only an atom enormously expanded. Perhaps the solar system itself is an expanded atom, with the planets, asteroids and other bodies revolving about the sun as the analogs of electrons inside the atom. For the atom, like the universe, is very largely empty—full of huge holes. The amount of matter, in both the atom and the universe, is relatively small—as compared with the amount of empty or unoccupied space.

Man himself is a sort of half-way house between the atom and the star. Shapley has recently described man, from the standpoint of chemistry, as a rather uninteresting colloidal substance. By the standpoint of intelligence and sensibility, man is enormously important. For man takes in the universe through the instrumentality of his senses. The universe thus lives in man; and conversely man lives in the universe.

We are constantly hesitating upon the verge of great discoveries in science. But the more we advance along the pathway of knowledge, the wider becomes the horizon of the unknown. We are constantly solving problems. But for each problem, we encounter many more which have not yet been solved. Science is but a means of disclosing our increasing ignorance. As the poet, Alexander Pope, has put it:

So man, who here seems principal alone,
Perhaps acts second to some sphere unknown,
Touches some wheel, on verges to some goal;
'Tis but a part we see, and not the whole.

It is customary to conclude that modern science, in the larger sense, has its true initiation with Sir Isaac Newton. Were the minds of early men inferior to those of modern times? The anthropologists tells us no. The trouble with the earlier generations of men was that they had not only not learned how to organize their knowledge; they had not learned to correlate and integrate. It was not a defect of mind, but of method, not a weakness of intellect but of technic.

The modern scientist is characterized by two qualities. First, experimentation—in the laboratory or in the field. Second, comes the exercise of the imaginative mind, to correlate all the discovered facts and to devise a comprehensive theory that will fit and embrace them all. In a very real sense, the great contemporary scientist is a universe-maker.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Are American workmen more careless than workers of foreign birth? Less interested in their jobs . . . caring little for the trade itself and mainly for the money they can get out of it?

The garage boss thought they were. He was an American boss of American workingmen—yet, watching one of them kick a fine wrench carelessly aside, he said—

"And then they wonder why they don't get a raise? What's a wrench to them? They've no feeling for tools, or for their job or their shop. All they want is to get the job done as quickly as possible and they haven't a spark of pride in quality of performance."

Was that true? We wondered. Printed his comment and spent days opening the flood of answers. A few of them were mad as hops. How dared we—how DARED we criticize American workers?

But there was one answer that stood out. Amazingly, the writer agreed with that boss—

"Yes," wrote George Ullman, of Los Angeles, "he's right—BUT THERE'S A REASON.

"The American youngsters certainly are careless. They learn to be that way from the examples set by their fathers—who also are careless to a very great degree. But this carelessness has come to be a part of the very nature of the American worker and it is something for which he is not entirely responsible.

"THE AMERICAN INDUSTRIAL SYSTEM, ITSELF, is THE MOST POTENT FACTOR IN THE WORKMAN'S DELINQUENCY.

"The American worker differs from the European worker in this respect. The European worker is given sufficient time to learn his trade carefully and to turn out an article of which he can be justly proud. His honor as an individual and his pride as a creator go into the job. His competition with his fellow workers is a matter of QUALITY, not of QUANTITY. His work is truly a part of his life. He respects it.

"The American system enforces an entirely different attitude. American business is the originator of speedy production. Our workmen are hustled and hurried to make speed. Our work is, as a consequence, inferior. WE ARE NOT GIVEN TIME TO DO GOOD WORK. Our jobs rush by us too fast for us to achieve mutual admiration.

"I, myself, have been deeply ashamed of some of the work I have been compelled to turn out. I know that the job was rotten, that it was dishonest to the purchaser of that work. I hated to have to do any work in that way. And I know that my fellow-workmen felt the same way. But what could we do? Sometimes we have rebelled, but the next time we went to work it was the same all over again. WE HAD TO COMPLY WITH THE SYSTEM OR GET OUT.

"THE IDEAL AMERICAN WORKER IS THE ONE WHO FUNCTIONS MOST LIKE A MACHINE . . . AND A MACHINE CAN HAVE NO SOUL. THE JOB BECOMES JUST A MEANS TO BREAD, NOTHING MORE. THE FINER SENSES THE LOVE OF CRAFTMANSHIP BECOMES BRUISED. THERE CAN BE NO PERSONAL JOY OR SATISFACTION IN THE WORK. That is my explanation of the cause of American carelessness."

A sound explanation. Does it go to the root of the trouble? Do you agree that our American ideal of efficiency doesn't ALLOW a man to take time to do a good job—a job of which he can be proud? And if so—WHAT PRICE EFFICIENCY?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Allies

Why should man fear,
Man who is one
With that vast Force
Back of the dawn?

More strong than steel,
To meet his need
His allies race
At lighting speed

The universe
Lends all its good
When he would act
In worthy mood

Unbounded power
Is behind
Each lifting thought,
Each motivé kind.

Why should man fear,
Man who is one
With Force that whirls
The stars and sun?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 4.—It is only after sundown that old Trinity diffuses the benign and mellow grandeur bespeaking its charm. During the day the distracting roar all about detracts. Thousands scurry past Trinity without a passing glance.

But on a clear night with a moon in canescence, the church and English type of churchyard surrounding it present a memorable vista. The oldest religious edifice in the city, it was destroyed in a great fire and rebuilt during the Revolution.

During the Eighteenth Century, Trinity's high spire was a city wonder, but today in the lower Broadway canyon is completely dwarfed. Old and aristocratic families retain pews in Trinity, a throw-back to days of the Governor's Pew, Bachelors' Pew, Housekeepers' Pew, etc.

Pewholders today retain their benches as a symbol of honor, a slim percentage of holders actually attend services. Indeed, Trinity is rarely packed, but it carries on with complacence. For Trinity is one of the richest corporations in the world.

In early Dutch days, Trinity's entrance was a town meeting place. Services offered a patina of pomp. English officers in red coats mingled with silkily dressed wives of the merchants, the latter attended by Negro slaves in bright colored regalia.

The salary of the rector today is fixed. But in other days both his salary and pay of assistants were any sums they might need. Perhaps no other pulpit offers such metropolitan fame. The choral service is still an attraction.

Boys in white surplices fill the chancel and surprising voices of the operatic and concert stage have been discovered there. But to the stranger the greatest impression of Trinity is the noonday crowd of giggly office workers lunching on the decaying flat grave stones of the great.

A venerable edifice standing out in contrast among surrounding towers is the City Hall. Built at the beginning of the nineteenth century in Louis XVI style, it, too, offers a beautiful tracery in the gathering dusk when its windows fade into a glowing purple. It has been the scene of historic events from the reception of Lafayette to the welcome to Lindbergh. Lincoln's body was on view there. In rotunda galleries are statutes of early New York magistrates looking serenely upon sight-seers. And one wonders what they would think of their recent and unworthy successors.

Another reminder of Revolutionary days is Fraunce's Tavern, a name honoring its original owner, Samuel Fraunce, a West Indian mulatto. It is red brick with creamy wooden porticos, and a bewigged doorkeeper stands at its portals. Chief trade is at luncheon. Yorkshire pudding is the piece de resistance.

In a large uptown hotel patrons are no longer paged by name. Instead by room numbers.

It was one of those tiny Mexican hairless dogs with a bright red bow at its neck being led on a leash along Broadway. "Look!" cried a chorus girl. "One of those choo—hooey—woo-ies!"

* * *

And there are those visitors to Mexico City who always tell of "seeing Popocatepetl and that other one!"

Nor can I help confusing lavalliere, candelabra and chandelier although once fired in cub reporter days for writing a bride wore a candelabra around her neck. And made things worse by confessing I meant a chandelier.

"Let me break up the meeting a minute," writes L. T. R. "When you say night clubs are dying off you not only do not know what you are talking about but you are a trifle balmy. Go comb your hair!"

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Are you so anxious to win in a friendly card game that you arrange signals with your accepted partner?

Then you are a pretty good sport, and in a way dishonest.

It would be unwise to trust you in matters by which greater dishonesty might bring you more important rewards.

There are players who try to get sight of their opponents' cards.

In fact, they will resort to almost any despicable little trick to turn the tide their way if they can avoid being detected.

There is no real pleasure derived from play with a dishonest person.

There is bound to be thought that such a man or woman will bear watching in any deal.

It is a shock to discover such a trait in one who has been liked and respected previously to the little card game.

There is something wrong with the one who wishes to win dishonestly.

Real men, worthy of the trust and confidence—the friendship of their fellows—have a finer sense of sportsmanship than to cheat at cards.

Think it over.

If you are dishonest in a little game, you know that you have been tempted to be dishonest in other ways.
